MARINE DISASTERS.

ADVERSE STATEMENTS REGARDING THE BLAME

A Captain and a Mate who Stand Discussing Whether a Light is Green or Red Until a Collision Occurs.

COTTAGE CITY, MASS., Aug. 22.—The United States steamship Tallapoosa sank [illegible] [illegible] survivors landed at Woods' Hall. She collided with a three masted schooner. She lies with her mainmast and the top of her smokestack out of the water. It is stated two lives were lost by the disaster to the Tallapoosa.

BOSTON, Aug. 22.—Facts concerning the sinking of the Tallapoosa are as follows: The Tallapoosa, with 100 men and officers, bound to Newport, to take on board Secretary Chandler, at 11 o'clock last night, during a thick fog, three miles northeast of Oak Bluffs, Martha's Vineyard, was struck on the bow by the schooner James S. Lowell, of Bath, Captain Reed, from Baltimore for Portland with a cargo of coal. Her side is crushed in, and she sank in five minutes in ten fathoms of water. As she went down her whistle was blown as a signal of distress, and was heard by the steamer Gate City, which came up immediately, and with the schooner Mary A. Hood, which happened to be in the vicinity, rescued the crew, with the exception of the surgeon and one man, who are said to be missing. The Gate City blew her whistle, and the steamer Fish Hawk, lying at the wharf at Woods' Hall, sent out her steam launch. The Gate City lay to till 3 o'clock, transferring the crew to the launch. They all landed at Woods' Hall. The Tallapoosa lies on what is known as Squash Meadow Flat. Her smoke stack and the top of her mast alone are visible. The schooner James S. Lowell has on board several of the Tallapoosa crew. The names of the missing from the Tallapoosa are Past Assistant Surgeon Clarence [illegible] Black and George E. Foster, landsman. Some of Secretary Chandler's personal effects were on the vessel when she sank.

STATEMENT OF CAPT. REED.

Capt. Reed of the schooner James S. Lowell, states he was passing through the sound last night with a strong southwest wind, with all sail set. He was going nine knots an hour. The night was clear, but dark. When two miles away the lookout reported "a light ahead." Shortly it was seen to be a red light, and I said, speaking to the wheelman, "Red, starboard; keep her straight." I stood near the wheel during all the time, and the course was not altered until word came that the green light could be seen. To avoid a collision, seeing the steamer doing nothing to avoid us, I ordered the helm down, but before it could be done and before my vessel had altered her course at all, the two vessels struck each other. Their stems seemed to come together exactly. Our vessel's stem glanced by the Tallapoosa and penetrated her hull. After the vessels stopped, the steamer swung around alongside the Lowell, and her crew might have jumped on board, but it was not then known what was the condition of either vessel. After getting my family into the boat I examined my vessel and found she was leaking quite badly, although not in immediate danger of sinking. The Tallapoosa drifted away from us, and sank within a few minutes.

At that time not many of the officers and crew had left her. As she went down those who could do so got to the rigging and were taken off later. The schooner Mary A. Hood came along and assisted in saving the crew, and later the steamer Gate City was signaled and came to our assistance. After all those saved had been transferred to her, she steamed away to Woodshall, where the shipwrecked were landed, and then proceeded to Vineyard Haven. Speaking of the collision, Captain Reed says: "It is the most stupid piece of work I ever saw. The night was clear, the lights of the Lowell were burning brightly and were perfectly visible a long distance."

STATEMENT OF LIEUTENANT EVERETT.

BOSTON, Aug. 22.—Lieut. Wm. H. Everett, executive officer, Ensign Wm. H. Whittlesey and Mate Hugh Keefe, with 100 men from the wreck of the Tallapoosa, arrived to-night at the navy yard [illegible] while waiting orders. Lieut. Everett says he [illegible] the Tallapoosa [illegible] in a manner to avoid the bow of the [illegible] which the schooner would cover. He was not on deck at the time of the collision, but from conversations he has since had he feels [illegible] that the steamer was in the right. "The two vessels," he says, "were coming in diametrically opposite directions head on. The schooner should have kept straight along, and should have passed to one side of her, but it would seem as though the officer in charge of the schooner were afraid we would not alter our course, and turned their vessel's head from its proper course. Now, it is a perfectly easy thing beyond a fixed point, but when that point is passed, looking around there is no telling what to do. The very way the schooner struck us would indicate she had changed her course, [illegible] as she did full head on us, instead of [illegible] alongside. The statements of others on the Tallapoosa, however, would tend to give just a different set of [illegible] were followed. The general opinion among the sailors is that the schooner was wrong in heading in such a way as to [illegible] the Tallapoosa [illegible] passing astern [illegible] her bows. The Tallapoosa [illegible] and endeavoring to [illegible] it [illegible] was struck by the schooner. Save a sailor who claims to have been in the pilot house at the time of the [illegible] the captain, [illegible] the schooner but [illegible] whether it was a green or red light, and finally the captain exclaimed, "We're [illegible] I can see [illegible] way or should [illegible]; and then we struck." One man at the wheel, [illegible] they gave the order, hard a starboard, which [illegible] have been hard a port. Whatever the [illegible] it was she [illegible] plunged [illegible] head into the Tallapoosa on the starboard bow, and the timbers of the vessel, opening [illegible] for the water to pour. About sixteen men were seen on the deck of the government boat, the watch on deck, but according to the statement of several of the watch they [illegible] of their comrades were asleep forward. The crew below were rudely awakened by the terrible shock and sprang hastily from their hammocks. The water flooded the berth deck, and instantly the sailors, abandoning everything, rushed on deck through the hatches. There followed a confusing [illegible] so as to [illegible] of the officers. [illegible] every [illegible] through the width. The steam [illegible] quickly shut off, and the [illegible] order to the [illegible] was heard: "Man the boats! Man the boats!" There was no confusion [illegible] the [illegible] twenty or thirty took to the water [illegible] the boat. All the [illegible] in a few minutes the [illegible] was completely submerged [illegible] the head [illegible] on the [illegible] craft. Captain Merry, Lieutenant Everett, Boatswain Towne, Master Mechanic [illegible] and four [illegible] took to the [illegible] to the depth of the water was not sufficient to [illegible] the launch. Ensign Whittlesey and Mate [illegible] to the [illegible]. The schooner after the [illegible] of the [illegible] should [illegible]. The [illegible] to [illegible] a second schooner, Mary A. Hood, which [illegible] in [illegible] boats [illegible] and took up the sailors floating in the water and [illegible] the others from the rigging. Captain Merry was the last man to leave his vessel and Lieutenant Everett [illegible] before him.

No attempt was made to save personal effects. The men were later transferred to the steamer Gate City, [illegible] for Savannah, which went to [illegible] Woodshall. The men will remain here this evening. Captain Merry is still remaining with a few of the men at Woodshall. [illegible] are reported lost, but it [illegible] are known certainly to have [illegible] Surgeon Clarence E. Black and the colored cabin waiter.

A VISIT TO THE WRECK.

Said Executive Officer Everett: "Friday morning we went out to look at the wreck, and we found only a portion of her mainmast and smokestack above the water. I think she can be raised. She is worth it. The launch we found had been removed from its [illegible] and we soon discovered a little schooner making off with her on it. [illegible] We gave chase and got it back. Lieut. Everett strongly [illegible] the statement [illegible] from Washington that the Tallapoosa had acquired an [illegible] reputation. [illegible] has [illegible] her [illegible] Captain Merry says [illegible] and I have always considered her reputation as very good. She never had any serious accidents, and [illegible] with a schooner a year or two ago being [illegible]."

Ensign Whittlesey says: "There was no confusion. Mr. Gallagher and myself stood on the steamer until she went under, and then swimming [illegible] we [illegible] Afterwards we swam back and clung to the [illegible] the rigging [illegible] by the [illegible] till the boats took us on board."

THE WORLD OF POLITICS.

Fusion Desired in Virginia—Kansas Democrats Declare for Free Whisky—How the Democrats Have Aided the Republicans in the Campaign.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 22.—[Special.]—Democrats from Virginia report [illegible] a fusion movement in that state. Efforts are being made to secure a fusion of the [illegible] which will probably result in success. It is [illegible] the Democrats [illegible] straightout republican [illegible] at [illegible] Mahone [illegible] a mass meeting will be held. The purpose of the conference is to [illegible] and confer as to [illegible] all friends of Blaine, regardless [illegible] to support. "There is [illegible] for Blaine this fall," said [illegible] to your correspondent to-day, "if the factions be united. There are between fifteen and twenty thousand democrats in the state who will vote for Blaine, if our people are united and make an earnest campaign. These voters who are tired of Bourbon methods and who admire Blaine [illegible] will not break away from the old land marks and take the risk of neighborly [illegible] unless they see that the republicans are going into the fight with a fair prospect of success. If we are united we can win. If divided, we will [illegible] a respectable vote. I know of a republican club within five miles of this city, numbering fifty voters, not one hundred [illegible] which will attempt a stroke of work in the campaign unless our party is united."

"Do you think the readjusters and straightouts will unite?" asked the correspondent.

"Yes. There may be some delays and trouble, but in the end I believe we will come together. Mahone is at present the cause of trouble. He has an electoral ticket composed of eleven readjusters and one republican. There are 130,000 republicans in the state and 30,000 readjusters. I am using the old and familiar [illegible] names [illegible] to make my meaning clear, although Mahone last spring changed the name of his party. The republican straightouts want a larger representation on the electoral ticket, and they are entitled to it. Suppose John Kelly should go to the republican organization in New York and say, 'I have control of an organization numbering between [illegible] and I will help you elect Blaine,' and should they demand the naming of eleven Tammany democrats and one republican on the electoral ticket, then you would be having something of a parallel case to the condition of affairs in Virginia. Mahone says that his electors are representative men, and that they can carry the state with the ticket he has named. He cannot do it. The straightouts are not desirous of monopolizing the ticket. We only want a fair representation and are disposed to make any concessions in our power. We want to win in this fight, and I am confident that the common desire will ultimately bring about a harmonious solution."

DEMOCRATS HELPING REPUBLICANS.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 22.—Secretary [illegible] of the democratic [illegible] committee, [illegible] said to-day that the [illegible] was [illegible] helping along the republican [illegible] by distributing republican documents. [illegible] [illegible] have been sending [illegible] pamphlet document, a speech delivered [illegible] here on the [illegible] the Irish [illegible] the Garfield [illegible] of the speech are [illegible] by requisition upon the [illegible] They are delivered to the committee in large quantities several thousand at a time, already folded and in wrappers and are addressed by [illegible] employes and placed in the mails. It appears to have been the custom of the committee [illegible] upon the integrity and care of the [illegible] folding room officials, and to mail [illegible] received from them without examination. To-day, however, an employe of the committee discovered by accidentally opening one of the [illegible] about to mail, that instead of [illegible] the committee was distributing [illegible] most [illegible] a republican [illegible] history [illegible] the [illegible] writer. An investigation followed, [illegible] fact that all the [illegible] in possession of the committee were [illegible] of this document. Secretary [illegible] went at once to the superintendent of the folding room and [illegible] him to task about the matter. He was informed that the substitution [illegible] was an honest mistake. [illegible] of [illegible] democratic documents were sent out by the democratic committee. They themselves [illegible] [illegible] the fact.

Texas Fever Among Cattle.

EUREKA, Kas., Aug. 22.—John H. Fullenwider, a member of the United States board of animal industry, has made an examination upon three head of grade cattle that [illegible] died here, and pronounces the disease splenic or Texas fever. A gentleman named Luke F. Jones shipped forty-eight head of Holstein, Durham and Hereford cattle from Wellington [illegible] on the 28th of July, they arriving here August 7. They were unloaded to rest at Decatur, Ill., where there were several head sick and dead. The cattle presumably had the Texas fever. In seven days after unloading at Decatur several head of "native" cattle were taken sick. Of forty-eight head nine have died, and nine others were taken sick, but recovered. Although other cattle were in the pasture, none of the latter have been sick or exhibit symptoms of the disease. These cattle were given Epsom salts and fed on green corn, which seemed to have a good effect. Fullenwider asked the press of Kansas, Missouri, Nebraska, Dakota and Montana to request all stock men to furnish him a list of all deaths in herds, with the cause of same, from January last to date, with future reports to January 1, 1885. This report is to include the kind of cattle dying. His post office address is Eureka, Kas.

Invites Thorough Investigation.

NEW YORK, Aug. 22.—[Special.]—Indian Agent McGillicuddy of Pine Ridge, Dakota, replies in the Post this evening to the charges published in the Tribune a few weeks ago. After showing how completely his work has been sustained in the past, he offers to "submit the whole case to a committee of three members, made up of one officer of the army conversant with the condition of these Indians prior to my assuming charge of them five years ago, one officer of the interior department and one disinterested citizen. Let the committee visit and examine thoroughly the agency and reservation, my past management and previous record, and if they can find aught against my character as an official or man, or against my ability as a manager, or that the vast majority of these Indians do not sustain me, I will willingly suffer a dishonorable dismissal."

Cholera Infantum.

BETHLEHEM, Pa., Aug. 22.—[Special.]—There has been an epidemic of [illegible] mortality [illegible] for several days, caused by cholera infantum. One family [illegible] lost four children in forty-eight hours. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] two within a single day. There were four more deaths last night in South Bethlehem.

Keene Fells His Property.

NEWPORT, Aug. 22.—James R. Keene has sold his property here to Alfred Smith, who held a mortgage on it for about $75,000, and accrued interest. It was understood [illegible] here that Keene would never return to Newport with his family to live, and this determination doubtless influenced him to the pledge of his lands.

Heavy Storm.

SYSTEMATICALLY POISONED.

The Flight of the Albion, N. Y., Bank President Discloses a Monstrous Plot of Robbery and Murder.

BOSTON, Aug. 22.—A special to the Journal from Albion, N. Y., this morning announced that A. S. Warner, of Albion, had disappeared, and that the National bank of which he is president was in consequence obliged to suspend. This announcement throws the first light upon a monstrous plot that for weeks has baffled Boston's district attorney, grand jury and her smartest detectives. The conspiracy was successful to this extent, William R. Burrows, one of the heirs to a two million dollar estate, living at 383 Beacon street, of this city, was systematically poisoned until the diabolical work was discovered just in time to prolong but not to save his life. He is still alive, but it is a living death. Suspicions were expressed of poisoning, and upon investigation arsenic was found in the stomach. The patient seemed better, but on May 7th the bad symptoms returned. From this time it has been evident that the young man must die. The matter was brought to the district attorney's attention and laid before the grand jury, but insufficient evidence has caused a postponement of the case from time to time. The sick man was taken in the latter part of May to 331 Beacon street, and later to the Hotel Oxford, and last week was removed to New York. The motive for poisoning was unknown. He is now suffering paralysis, so that he can move but one muscle of one arm, and death only can relieve him. By the will of Burrows' father the estate remains undivided until the death of his widow, who still survives him.

ABOLISHED OF HIS [illegible]

His executors are A. S. Warner of Albion, William R. Burrows, the son, Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Stewart of Albion, and the widow. Warner is practically in sole control of the estate. William has been dissipated, and owing to his physical condition has done little more than dabble in business for a year or two. In November, '82, he made the acquaintance of William R. Cauldwell [illegible] in Rochester. The following year they entered into business together [illegible] [illegible] Burrows, with his wife and two children, went to live with Caulkins, and in November Mrs. Burrows with her children left her husband. Burrows remained at Caulkins' house except [illegible] and [illegible] caused by dissipation. He left Caulkins February 18th, and did not return until carried there quite sick, from a house on Hudson street April 5th. While sick at Caulkins' house the patient was attacked with vomiting spells and partial paralysis and grew rapidly worse. About this time Warner, Hon. Roswell L. Burrows of Buffalo, and Mrs. Stewart came to Boston and consulting physicians were called into the case. It is an overt [illegible] of [illegible] among the property [illegible] the estates, [illegible]

WHO ADMINISTERED THE POISON?

There is considerable [illegible] Burrows' [illegible] [illegible] in Caulkins, while he is now [illegible] with Warner. In justice to [illegible] family it should be said that [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] at any time against [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] In a recent interview [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] the [illegible] of [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] General [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Caulkins [illegible] [illegible] the interview. FOREIGN DISPATCHES.

War between France and China Inevitable.

OPINION OF SAN FRANCISCO'S CONSUL.

The Cholera Epidemic—The Disease Breaks Out in England—Holland Proposes an International Hygienic Congress.

NEW YORK, Aug. 22.—[Special.]—The Commercial Bulletin learns that thirty-three vessels, of [illegible] [illegible] tons each, hitherto engaged in the Chinese merchant service, have been transferred to Russell & Co., of Wall street, with the stars and stripes now flying at their mastheads. The Franco-Chinese war was actively discussed at the merchants' exchange and among Chinese merchants to-day. The news is regarded as serious to those who have relations with Hong Kong, Shanghai and other ports. A prominent firm of Wall street engaged in the China trade thought differently and said the treaty with the foreign powers would in all probability make it a very dangerous thing for an army to blockade treaty ports in China. More than two-thirds of the tea crop had been shipped, but cotton goods, petroleum and other products of this country would be sent as usual. "A temporary inconvenience would probably be felt, yet it is not expected that commerce would suffer to any very serious extent. An agent of the Hong Kong and Shanghai bank here, said: "An understanding exists between England, France and other powers that the port of Shanghai and the commerce shall, in the event of war, not be molested. If our commerce was in danger, either at Shanghai or any other ports, we should, I think, have been apprised."

OPINION OF SAN FRANCISCO'S CONSUL.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 22.—[Special.]—Your correspondent called on the Chinese consul in this city to-day and asked an opinion respecting the troubles in China. Speaking in good English, the consul said: "I am sure that the Chinese government will never pay the indemnity demanded by France. It is simply an extortion, and we ought not to pay one dollar. France has been the aggressor all through. I do not see how a war can be avoided. The Chinese have been preparing for war for some time. They are obliged to be ready for war from the aggressions of foreign powers." When asked the cause that led up to the rupture, he said: "It was the unprovoked attack on Langson. This is a port in the southern part of China, near Annam, and it was bombarded most unnecessarily by the French. It may have been through a mistake or misunderstanding on the part of the French admiral, but it was done, and forty Chinese were either killed or wounded. The consul then, with true patriotism, insisted that France would not find her task an easy one.

CHINESE TO INVADE TONQUIN.

LONDON, Aug. 22.—The Pall Mall Gazette this afternoon says: China has not issued a declaration of war, but will inform France and the neutral powers that she will regard a repetition of the Kee Lung incident or an attack on Chinese territory as an ipso facto declaration of war. China will ask the powers, and especially England, to be strictly neutral. The English colony at Hong Kong has been the base [illegible] against Tonquin. China expects then to meet the French attack [illegible] of the English [illegible] [illegible] will be warned of their duties as neutrals. It is quite certain that the Chinese will immediately cross the southern frontier and invade Tonquin.

PLANS OF FRANCE.

PARIS, Aug. 22.—Le Paris denies that reinforcements have been ordered to China. The question whether France will carry the war into the interior, this paper says, is not in consideration. For the present France will occupy only Foo Chow and Kelung.

Le Temps believes France has no idea of blockading the open ports of China. If found necessary, it is likely she will be chosen that [illegible] interfere with [illegible] commerce. Le Temps calls attention to the absence of [illegible] declaration of war.

ARCTIC CANNIBALISM.

An Extract from Schley's Official Report Shows Some of the Bodies had been Mutilated.

NEW YORK, Aug. 22.—The secretary of the navy and the secretary of war have been in consultation to-day at the navy yard at Brooklyn, with Commander Schley, regarding the Greely relief expedition. From them the following statement relative to recent reports of the treatment of the bodies of the dead of the Greely party is derived. "From revelations made by exposing some of the bodies inferences have been drawn that incisions had been made in all bodies, and that portions of the flesh had been used, either for food or for bait in catching shrimps. Authentic extracts from Commander Schley's report, now being prepared for the secretary of the navy, shows a portion of the remains to have been so treated, but that those of Lieutenant Lockwood, Sergeant Israel, Sergeant Lynn, Private Schneider, Sergeant Gross, and the Esquimaux Christiansen, were absolutely whole and untouched. In preparing the bodies of the dead for transportation in alcohol to St. Johns, it was found that the bodies of six of them, Lieutenant Kislingbury, Sergeant Jewel, Private Whisler, Private Henry, Private Ellis and Sergeant Ralston, had been cut and the fleshy parts removed to a greater or less extent, all the other bodies being intact."

DISCHARGING ENLISTED MEN.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 22.—Instructions have been forwarded to Commander Schley of the Greely relief expedition, to discharge all the enlisted men under his command who wish to leave the service. The vessels composing the fleet will remain in commission at New York until further orders. It is understood that Lieutenant Emery, commanding the Bear, will be ordered to duty on the new dispatch boat Dolphin, as executive officer. A report has been received by the treasury department from Lieutenant Healy, giving the details of the cruise of the revenue steamer Corwin in Behring sea and the Arctic ocean, from June 8th to July 14th. He made a diligent search for the schooner Alaska, which sailed from Goodwin for San Francisco October, 1883, and says there can be no doubt of her loss, with all her passengers and crew. Captain Healy suggests the establishment of a life saving station at Point Barrows for the benefit of American vessels that frequent the Arctic ocean during the whaling season.

EXHUMING NOT PERMITTED.

KALAMAZOO, Aug. 22.—Commander Schley, of the Greely relief expedition, stated privately that the remains of the late Edward Israel, of Kalamazoo, the meteorologist of the Lady Franklin bay expedition, were intact, and his relatives would not allow them to be exhumed.

Assessed Values of Railroads.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 22.—The state board of equalization has concluded its labors in arriving at the assessment valuation of railroads. The Central Pacific heads the list, its valuation being placed at $24,000,000, an increase of $6,000,000 over the valuation last year. Next comes the Southern Pacific, the valuation of which is raised $4,000,000, the board placing its worth at $17,000,000. The total valuation of railroads in the state is $51,500,000.

Fire at St. Paul.

GERVAIS, Aug. 22.—[Special.]—At St. Paul, Marion county, the saloon and dwelling house of M. Hays were burned last night. The fire is supposed to have been incendiary. The loss is probably $1500; no insurance.

IDAHO.

Sawmill and Lumber Burned.

RATHDRUM, Aug. 22.—[Special.]—A messenger has just arrived from Leano, who reports the large sawmill and lumber yards of Small & Ellis burned to the ground. It is estimated that between 50,000 and 60,000 dollars worth of lumber is destroyed besides a fine mill property.

Replenishing the Conscience Fund.

Washington Letter.

The contributions to the "conscience fund" of the treasury, in the last fiscal year, amounted to over $6000. This fund has, since its establishment twenty years ago, amounted to about $250,000. No footing up of the various years' receipts has ever been made, but for some years past it has run from $5000 to $7000 a year, and it is twenty years since its establishment; it is supposed the total will reach about the sum mentioned. The term "conscience fund" was originated by Treasurer Spinner, whose autograph upon the government notes years ago was so much of a curiosity. One day during the war he received a letter at the treasury department, from a man who enclosed a check for $1500, saying it represented a misappropriation of government funds of which he had been guilty while a quartermaster in the army. "Suppose we call this a contribution to the conscience fund," said Spinner, "and get it announced in the newspapers; perhaps we will get some more." The announcement was made, and the treasury was the recipient of further sums of this character. They were quite numerous for some years, but in the last few years it is said to have been growing less. Whether the conscience of the country is more hardened or the opportunities for stealing less numerous is uncertain. The largest contribution ever made was $2000, forwarded by an ex-revenue ganger from Chicago as the amount of a bribe received by him from distillers who desired to defraud the government. The smallest ever received was 3 cents, forwarded by a Massachusetts man, who remembered that he had at one time, years before, used a washed 3-cent stamp on a letter.

Pressure for Cleveland's Withdrawal.

Chicago Tribune.

There is not much doubt that a heavy pressure is being brought to bear upon Governor Cleveland to retire from the presidential canvass. Where there is so much smoke there must be some fire. The democratic leaders are able to give some excellent reasons why he should retire. The democratic convention was warned that he would encounter a bitter opposition from the workingmen, and especially among the Irish democrats; it had no idea of the extent to which this antagonism would grow. Now the democratic politicians are beginning to realize how formidable this opposition really is, and they can say to Mr. Cleveland with truth that he could not to-day receive the nomination at the hands of the party, and that consequently he should withdraw in its interest. They can also say to him that the convention had no information concerning the shocking scandal with which his name is connected, the essential facts of which are admitted by his friends. The single purpose of naming him was expediency. He was selected because he was believed to be an available candidate. But one month's experience has proven him to be unavailable, and the revelations of his unfitness and weakness certainly afford sufficient ground for demanding his retirement.

A Demoralized Party at Buffalo.

Buffalo Times, Ind.

It is unnecessary to portray the demoralized condition of the democratic party in this city. The fact that it is torn into factions and embarrassed with internal jealousies is so patent that comment upon these matters would simply be a repetition of what is very generally known. The labor element, a powerful factor in an election, and heretofore a faithful and valuable ally to the party has been antagonized, unnecessarily, simply to please a few who happen to stand near the throne. The Irish-American vote, upon which the old-time democrats relied with a proud confidence in a presidential campaign, has been crowded back in the recognition of party leadership, and rather than stand in the position of simply being tolerated this strong and sturdy element is on the point of going over to the enemy, where a welcome recognition is already tendered.

SATURDAY MORNING, AUGUST 23, 1884.

EFFECT OF THE "SOLID SOUTH" ON NATIONAL POLITICS.

It is an undoubted fact that party obligations at this time are, for many reasons, more lightly borne than at any time within the memory of living men. This fact is not peculiar to one party or the other. Hitherto there has been more independence and more wayward voting on the part of republicans than on the part of democrats; but now there are signs in abundance that the spirit of independent action has taken a deep hold also of the democratic mind in many of the northern states. This year there is "bolting" on both sides, and the democratic "bolt" appears to be fully as large as the republican, if, indeed, it is not much larger.

But there is one circumstance which still holds multitudes of republicans, who otherwise would be more or less indifferent about this contest, to close affiliation with their party. More than that, it is a powerful and most effective check upon a strong inclination on the part of multitudes to witness a change of parties in the administration of the government. The republican party has been in the ascendant twenty-four years. How long ought the country to be controlled by one party without change? In ordinary circumstances great numbers of republicans would be disposed to admit that if the change was ever to come it might come after the lapse of a quarter of a century. But there is one leading circumstance that forbids such admission on their part. And here is the turning point with those whose votes will, in all probability, decide the approaching election.

What is this circumstance? It is simply the solid south. Not merely the fact that sixteen states, with 153 electoral votes, are counted as certain for the democratic party, but the more striking fact that those states are counted by party managers and will return their electoral votes without any regard whatever to fair ascertainment of the will or wishes of their people. In fully one-half of those states the problem of an election is not to secure an expression of the legal vote, but to defeat it. It makes no difference what the actual sentiment is—the result is pre-ordained, and 153 electoral votes are counted as so much stock in trade. An election in one-half of the southern states is a criminal farce, and whenever an attempt is made to defeat it, the next result is a criminal tragedy. Were elections just and fair there could be no complaint that a majority of the people of any state or group of states prefer one party over another. But when it is known that force and fraud habitually control elections in many states for a predetermined end, and when it is observed that intimidation, violence, ballot-box stuffing and murder itself are employed to reach that predetermined end, the case is very different, and it becomes impossible not to raise a protest against effecting a change of parties in the government by such methods, even though the party in power has held the government for twenty-four years.

This violence hitherto has defeated itself, and will again. If the solid south—made solid by such methods—is a source of power to the party that has striven to profit by it, it is also a source of weakness to it, because it is a menace to republican government, and as such combines against the party that employs it, the stronger vote of the northern states. This it is, mainly, that has held the republican party together during the last twelve years. This it is, mainly, that holds to the support of the republican party now multitudes who otherwise would be more or less willing to see a change of administration after so long a time. Had elections in the south been free from fraud and fair in fact, many northern states would ere this have been willing to try the democratic party in the government for a term at least, if only for a change of administration.

But until the principle of fairness in elections shall be established and observed in the southern states, until the time shall come when the solid political strength of that section ceases to be counted in advance for a single party without a thought of admitting a doubt that might attend a free expression of the popular will, the republican party will not have been in power long enough, though the period be one hundred years. The objections that could be urged against a change of parties in the administration, on any of the minor issues might be small indeed; but the objection to introduction of the southern method of controlling elections and making it a national principle goes to the fundamental conditions of republican government. The southern method is a sufficient crime when it controls the southern states. When it is proposed to make it the instrument of controlling the government of the union, with the certainty that if power is once obtained by this method it will be perpetuated by it, the objection becomes invincible. And hence so long as these conditions continue the republican party's bolters and stragglers will be comparatively few, and these few after short experience will come back to it. During the brief period when free elections prevailed in the southern states and some of those states were allowed to go republican, there was more sign of a break-up in the republican party of the northern states than there ever was before or has been since. It was a solid south twenty-five years ago that first made a solid north. In more recent years it has been a solid south, mainly, that has kept the north, with trifling exceptions, united. The northern republican party was weaker in 1876 than in any other presidential contest of its history, chiefly because it was supposed that those southern states where the republican voters preponderate would go republican; that is, it was not believed that force and fraud would be employed to set aside the will of the majority. Relaxation of the party's lines and of the party's efforts in the northern states was a consequence of this impression. It was believed that several southern states would go republican, or if not, provided the elections were fair, it was a small matter. So in 1876 several northern states were carried by the democratic candidates; or rather, through republican indifference they were suffered to go democratic. Then it was revealed that elections in the southern states were merely a compound of fraud and farce, and in the next presidential election the northern states were "solid" again. The only way for the democratic party to beat the republicans in any of the northern states is to take its hand off the throat of the republican states of the south. But so long as the south is kept "solid" by unwarrantable means, the protest against it will be practically a "solid" north. Much as minor questions may be talked about, this remains the most powerful motive with the great body of republicans of the northern states. Multitudes of them, who otherwise would be indifferent, and many who would otherwise consent to a change of parties in the government, will hold to their allegiance, and not only that but will exert themselves with all their power against the democratic party, so long as the sixteen southern states, with their 153 electoral votes, consolidated by force and fraud, are counted in advance for the democratic party with the certainty that proceeds from the purpose to permit no free expression of the popular will. Since the republican party was organized as a protest against the pro-slavery oligarchy, why should it not continue in existence as a protest against this offspring of that oligarchy which takes form as a conspiracy against free elections and therefore against the fundamental principles of republican government?

Washington Gladden protests against keeping pupils in public schools at work upon arithmetic from eight to ten years, and says that "the reason why one-seventh of the years allotted to human life are consumed upon the study of arithmetic is that the science has been 'developed' in most of our text-books to a needless extent; that new subjects are introduced; that the application of arithmetic to all manner of possible and impossible transactions is extended so far that life becomes a burden to many a pupil before the book is finished. He would shorten the time of study of the subject two or three years.

NARROW MARGINS.

The late Senator Morton of Indiana, it will be remembered, made an effort to abolish the electoral college, and, in advocating his bill for that purpose, dwelt at great length upon the injustice of electing a president by a minority of the popular vote. The plan which he proposed would give to the different political parties the same power in deciding the election of presidents as they now have in deciding their representation in congress. The framers of the constitution intended that the majority of the states, and not necessarily the majority of the people, should decide the election of presidents. Under the present system it is possible for a majority of the states to prevent an election by refusing to vote. This is one of the dangers which Senator Morton wished to prevent. Such a change as he proposed has had many advocates, but it requires but a moment's reflection to see that it would practically revolutionize the character of our government. It would greatly increase the tendency to centralization, which is now one of our greatest dangers. If the states were obliterated in the choice of the chief executive we should have an empire instead of a republic. The dangers which Senator Morton sought to obviate would be practically removed by the enactment of such a bill as has already twice passed the senate to regulate the counting of the electoral vote. As long as it remains impossible to secure the passage of such a wise law, there is no probability that so radical a change as that proposed by Senator Morton will ever be made.

It is interesting, however, to notice that in a number of cases within the past fifty years the will of the majority has been completely defeated in the choice of presidents. When the majority has been represented in the decision of a presidential election, it has been quite as much the result of an accident as of the natural working of the system. Indeed, the final result produced by the electoral machinery has not, within fifty years, approached within 10 per cent. of being a true representation of the will of the people as expressed in their votes and in a number of instances has departed from it over 30 per cent. In 1872 General Grant received 55 per cent. of the votes of the people; in the electoral college he received 81 per cent. In 1868 General Grant received 52 per cent. of the popular vote, and 73 per cent. of the electoral vote. In 1864 Mr. Lincoln received 55 per cent. of the popular vote, and 91 per cent. of the electoral vote. In 1860 Mr. Lincoln received only 40 per cent. of the popular vote, but 59 per cent. of the electoral vote. In 1856 Mr. Buchanan received only 45 per cent. of the popular vote; but 59 per cent. of the electoral vote. In this election Fillmore received 25 per cent. of the popular vote, and only 2 per cent. of the electoral vote; but fourteen of his friends were elected to congress. In 1852 Pierce received 51 per cent. of the popular vote, and 85 per cent. of the electoral vote. In 1848 General Taylor received 47 per cent. of the popular vote, and 56 per cent. of the electoral vote. At this election Mr. Van Buren received 10 per cent. of the popular vote, and received no electoral vote; but three of his friends were elected to the house of representatives. In 1844 Mr. Polk received not quite 50 per cent. of the popular vote, but he received 62 per cent. of the electoral vote.

And if we examine the popular vote it will be found that there has seldom been a presidential election in the history of the country in which a change of a very few thousand votes would not have altered the result. The decision has really rested in nearly every case with a small handful of voters. In 1880 if 10,517 votes in New York which were cast for Garfield had been given to Hancock, the former would have been in all probability to-day a member of the senate, and a great national tragedy would never have been enacted. It is hard to realize how altered would have been our whole history if Lincoln had not been elected president in 1860, and yet if only 18,173 citizens in California, Illinois, Indiana and Oregon had voted differently he would have been beaten. The whig party were overwhelmed in 1852 when General Scott received but forty-two electoral votes, and yet if in the states of Connecticut, Delaware, Florida, Iowa, Louisiana, Maryland, New Jersey, New York, North Carolina, Ohio and Rhode Island 31,829 people who voted for Pierce had cast their ballots for "the hero of Lundy's Lane," he would have had a majority of the electoral college. In spite of the "hunker" and "barnburner" split in New York in 1848, General Cass needed but the transfer of 7169 votes in Pennsylvania to have made him president, while the ambition of the great Henry Clay and the ardent hopes of his hundreds of thousands of devoted friends would not have been dashed to the ground had in 1844 2551 New York voters polled for him instead of for Polk. "Log cabins, hard cider, Tippecanoe and Tyler too" swept the country in 1840; but they would have been swept aside themselves had only 8188 votes in Maine, New Jersey, New York and Pennsylvania, which were given to them, been cast against them. In eleven presidential elections, in some of which the triumph of one side or the other was scarcely doubtful from the first, the average change of votes which would have been needed to reverse the result was only 20,965.

It will be seen from this review that the independent voter, the "kicker" and the scratcher is a person of consequence. Such voters are a power in the land which the managers of campaigns appreciate, though they do not always treat them with the respect to which their influence entitles them. There is another class of voters who are liable in every presidential election to determine the result—those who were not qualified to vote at the preceding election for president. The New York Tribune estimates that there are 192,650 of this class in the state of New York, and 104,000 in Ohio. One of the most effective campaign speeches ever made by Garfield was that in which he gave his whole attention to the "boys" who had become voters since the last presidential election. In the six states admitted to be doubtful there are more than half a million of these voters this year, and the result may depend upon which party they are persuaded to join. The large number of this class, the uncertain number of bolters from the two great parties, and the difficulty of ascertaining in advance the strength of the Butler or the St. John following in different states, together with the fact that in any event the balance of power is in the hands of that small number of persons who do not consider themselves members of either of the great national organizations, will make this one of the most interesting campaigns ever known in the history of the country.

In a recent sermon on modern demagogism a New York preacher presented the correct view that the ignorant classes are made the dangerous class by the influence of those who are better informed, but purposely mislead them by keeping them ignorant of the real facts. The communists of the French revolution who rushed headlong against the barriers that divided them from the wealthy and cultured were not so much to blame as their leaders who incited them on. Not until education and culture was within the reach of, or rather possessed by, all, could the country be free from the machinations of the liars, hypocrites and demagogues who infest it.

The alleged dying out of the Puritan stock in New England leads the London Times to say: That the famous Puritan stock should disappear from New England, as it is asserted to be disappearing, is matter for regret. So far as the dwindling is due to a selfish addiction among the wealthy to the careless pleasures of [illegible] But, at all events to a considerable extent, the deterioration is a question chiefly, as it were, of account. The old Yankee stock is lost to Massachusetts and Connecticut and Maine simply that it may emerge in another and less exhausted quarter of the American continent. For the sake of American prosperity at large it is hardly to be wished that the area of American activity should become so contracted as to oblige adventurous spirits to abide in New England and wed the Priscillas and Hephzibahs of their native villages.

CALIFORNIA.

Every now and then we hear from a democratic politician who claims California for Cleveland by a great majority. This is ridiculous. The fact is that California is a very close state, with the chances in presidential years rather favoring the republicans. In 1876 Hayes carried it over Tilden by 1805 majority. In 1880 Hancock carried it over Garfield by 78 majority, but this was due to the excitement produced by the Morey letter. It is well enough known that had it not been for that forgery Garfield would have taken the state by not less than 5000; and Blaine stands better in California than ever Garfield did. Butler will undoubtedly get several thousand votes in the state, and probably will draw more heavily from Cleveland than from Blaine. There is no reason to suppose that the republicans have lost anything in the Pacific states by the immigration of the last four years; and, as there are no bolting republicans reported in California, the chances that the electoral vote of the state will go to Blaine and Logan must be considered, on any candid estimate, to be very good.

The convention of the International Society of the Red Cross is to be held in Geneva, Switzerland, on the first of next month, and Miss Clara Barton has been commissioned by President Arthur as representative in chief of this government. This society was founded upon the treaty formed at Geneva in 1863, by the terms of which the subscribing states agreed to recognize the neutrality of the hospitals of sick and wounded soldiers, and hospital supplies and of all persons connected with the sanitary service. At the coming conference Christian and pagan will discuss measures and perfect systems which will tend to mitigate the horrors of war and promote the health of armies in the field. A significant feature of the meeting will be the representation of the United States by a woman.

This is a great fruit year for Oregon. What is now lacking is the means of taking care of the several kinds of choice fruits now in abundant supply, but which have a short season and will soon perish. Canning establishments to put up these fruits are much needed, also facilities for drying. For want of these, large quantities of the most luscious of fruits will prove a total loss. And this too in a season of hard times, when every possible source of income ought to be made as much out of as possible.

It is now conceded that the religious press of the country, which at first was pretty strong for Mr. Cleveland, is now almost unanimously against him. The admitted acts of his life have made it impossible for these journals to continue their support of him.

A southern paper, the Houston (Texas) Post, recently congratulated Harper's Weekly on its description of the vile principles of the abolition party! Verily the truly good independents are marching on.

WILL CLEVELAND BE WITHDRAWN?

Chicago Inter Ocean.

The New York Evening Post, edited by E. L. Godkin and Horace White, which at first declared in favor of dropping all political questions and running the campaign on scandal, now finds it has more than it can do to defend Cleveland from the terrible charges against his character, and it wants a change of tactics. It said in its issue of July 22 that "the personal character of the candidates is to be the great issue and the chief topic of discussion in the canvass. All attempts to extract from the platforms or from the political situation any other subject of controversy have thus far failed, and will undoubtedly continue to fail." It further says that "no talk about the tariff or the navy or the South American republics will do any good. "It is about these things" (scandals), it further adds, "and not about the tariff and the Spanish republics that the public wishes to hear them. [illegible] desire of the public we hold to be not only legitimate, but an essential of good government." And now, after starting a campaign of this kind, it cries out piteously "Enough!" and wants the republicans to "call off their dogs" from Cleveland. We are beginning to hear from the Post and papers of that stamp of the cruelty of attacking private character, and the national disgrace of making this campaign a scandal. The Post has learned that when the man hunts the bear the man has the sport, but when the bear hunts the man the bear has the sport. In this scandal fight begun by the democrats, the democrats are now on the defensive. They recognize that while intending to avoid their usual blunder, in nominating Cleveland they made the greatest blunder of their history, and now it is a serious question with them whether they shall withdraw him and put up Tilden. This is freely given as the meaning of the numerous interviews of Cleveland and the democratic leaders with the sage of Gramercy park. The Herald, a small democratic paper of this city, suggests Thurman as a suitable man, either Thurman and Hendricks, or Hendricks and Thurman, and other democratic papers have similar suggestions to make in the crisis which has set in against the man of many scandals. The Herald of the 15th, after speaking of the democratic situation, which seems incurable, says:

If they cannot be healed, the sooner the canvass goes the better for the democracy. In view of the sweeping experiments now making, it may not be out of place to call the attention of the democratic leaders to the fact that nobody is finding fault with Governor Hendricks, and that Allen G. Thurman stands very well among his friends and is held in general esteem.

While we regret as much as any that a national election should be degraded to a discussion of a candidate's infamy, the democrats are responsible for this turn of affairs: first, by putting up a man with such antecedents, and second, by insisting on running the canvass as a question of moral character. When the democrats thought to forestall attack by putting up a man without a record, they ran into the opposite extreme of putting up a man without a character.

A State in Pawn.

In looking for conspicuous examples of debt-ridden communities outside England, one naturally turns first of all to France. Two influences have combined to render the condition of public debt in that country more rapid and dangerous than anywhere else at the present time. TO RECEIVE THEIR WOE.—The noble red man appears to have an unquenchable thirst for whisky, and judging by the number of white men brought before the United States court for selling liquor to Indians he appears to find plenty ready to assist him in assuaging it. Yesterday Peter Henrichsen and Alfred M Grand from the region round about Yaquina bay were brought in by Deputy U S Marshal Pygall of Corvallis. An old smoke dried siwash came along as a witness. He says the prisoners offered him whisky but he would not have the bottle placed to his lips. They then gave the fire water to another member of the tribe who partook. The old ... then complained of them having evidently a desire to see fulfilled the passage "Woe unto him who putteth the bottle to his neighbor's lips." The prisoners are of the opinion that they are guilty as they were drunk at the time. They will have an examination to-day.

SINGULAR ACCIDENT.—J H Scriber, son of C W Scriber of Salem, met with a serious accident while out hunting with Alfred Coolidge of Silverton on Wednesday last. The two young men were hunting on Mr Mulkey's farm five miles above Silverton and becoming tired lay down under a tree to rest. Coolidge in turning over struck his foot against one of the guns discharging both barrels, the contents of one going through Scriber's left leg, cutting the flesh to the bone and making a fearful wound. The charge from the other barrel went into the heel of his right foot and lodged there. It was feared the foot would have to be amputated but Dr Davis, who was called in, has hopes of saving it.

SLUICING AT WALKER'S ISLAND.—The steamer Walla Walla went down to Walker's Island Thursday and began sluicing out the bar there. A cut of about 1600 feet is to be made, the principal object being not so much to secure additional depth as to take out the extreme curvature of the channel which has given long vessels a great deal of trouble this season. It will take about ten days for the steamer to complete the work. Martin's Island bar has given little trouble so far this year. A survey is now being made and if more depth is found necessary and the steamer can be secured, the bar will be sluiced.

ARRESTED.—Peter Cunningham and A Sass, two of the fishermen beaten at Adam Zorn's saloon yesterday afternoon, were arrested last evening on charges of drunk and disorderly preferred by Zorn. After selling them beer all the afternoon it would be singular if there were not sufficient grounds for the charge. Between ... Zorn to make the fellows drunk and then collecting fines from them for being disorderly the city should accumulate wealth at a rapid rate.

NEEDS OVERHAULING.—The mail facilities from Astoria to Oysterville need the attention of Captain Tuttle or some one else in authority. The service is simply abominable. A gentleman who called yesterday said he received two out of eight OREGONIANS mailed to him and this is but one instance of many reported. The trouble is all along the above route.

THE DELAYED TRAINS.—The break in the Northern Pacific at Glendive has been repaired and freight and express matter was received yesterday. Passengers by two delayed trains will arrive here Sunday. Those to arrive this morning are probably persons who got on west of the break, though this is not known.

REORGANIZED.—The money order office has been reorganized by the advancement of Mr Anmack as money order clerk, Mr Fallenius retiring. Mr Morris Ball, who for many years was connected with the house of W Gallick, enters as assistant to Mr Anmack.

THE USUAL SATURDAY HEGIRA.—The favorite Wide West will take out a large number to the seaside this afternoon at 2 and at 9 P M. The Lurline will start on the regular weekly trip in the same direction. The Fleetwood is off at 9 A M Sunday.

THE NEW SHIPPING LAW.

The following private letter which we are permitted to publish will be of interest to all persons connected with the merchant marine:

WASHINGTON, Aug 13 1884

Mr F G Bosworth, Ship Broker, 34 Front street, Portland, Oregon—Sir: I am in receipt of your communication of the 4th instant, with reference to the operation of the shipping act of June 26 1884 in prohibiting payment of advance wages.

In reply I desire to state that while appreciating the embarrassments referred to by you which attend the shipping of seamen by reason of such change in the law I am of opinion that such embarrassments will be but temporary, and that the shipping business of the country will soon adapt itself to the new conditions prescribed by the law.

However this may be it is considered to be the duty of this office to administer the law as it is found, but in doing so it does not consider it as within its province to give any construction to the law as to its effect upon the rights or liabilities of private parties, except in so far as it may become necessary to do so in the administration of its duties.

In this connection you are referred to the enclosed copy of a letter from this office, addressed to Captain J. G. Baker at Baltimore, under date of the 4th instant.

Very respectfully,
JARVIS PATTEN
Commissioner of Navigation

The enclosure referred to is as follows:

TREASURY DEPARTMENT, BUREAU OF NAVIGATION, WASHINGTON, D C, Aug 4 1884

Captain J G Baker, of ship John Rosenfeld, Baltimore, Md.—Sir: Your letter of the 2d instant is received. In answer to your inquiry respecting crew for your ship I can only refer you to the United States shipping commissioner for your port, who I presume will furnish your men as soon as possible under the law. I am sorry that the new law (act of June 26 1884) should produce embarrassment, but as the framers of section 10 of the act had in view the ultimate good of the service, I hope that ship masters will stand out boldly for the law against those who would break it, remembering that no reform which involves the breaking up of a long established custom can be effected without some sacrifice.

Very respectfully,
JAMES PATTEN
Commissioner of Navigation

BRIEF MENTION

La Belle Coquette at matinee to-day.

Fatinitza by the Fay Templeton company to-night.

Jailer Dougherty returned yesterday from the coast.

August Riedel, the insane man, was taken to the asylum yesterday.

Mr and Mrs Beal wish to gratefully acknowledge the kindness and beautiful floral offerings tendered at the funeral of their little babe Percy.

After a long residence on Washington and Tenth streets Mr D W Wakefield has removed to the northeast corner of Main and Eighth streets.

Walter Ball of Sellwood was arrested yesterday on a charge of killing a dog belonging to O Gates. His case will be tried in Justice Davis' court this morning.

The bark Belle of Oregon is making active preparations for sailing. She will be the first vessel that leaves this port under the new law relating to the payment of wages to sailors.

Lost last evening between Thirteenth and Yamhill streets and east side landing of Stark street ferry a gold enameled bar pin set with pearls and garnet. A liberal reward will be paid if left at Henrichsen & Greenberg's.

Rev Father Bouchard will deliver a lecture at the Catholic cathedral on to-morrow evening on "The Unity of the Church." The proceeds are to be applied toward purchasing the large stained glass window for the front of the cathedral.

The cheerful cry of the peddler of sweet cider is heard on the street once more. It will recall to many memories of early autumn days of long ago when, armed with a straw, they visited the old-fashioned cider mill and drank to repletion of "cider, sweet cider, sweet cider from the ..."

PERSONAL

J J Fowler of Glencoe is in the city.

Miss Lillie Murray returned yesterday from Tillamook.

Dr Harry Lane is able to be on the street again but is still weak. He will go down to the beach in a day or two for a short stay.

Rev R T Hall of Mt Vernon, Ohio, who is announced to preach at the First Congregational church to-morrow, is a brother in law of President Ellis of Forest Grove. He is an able and scholarly man and an excellent preacher.

C E Watkins, official photographer of the Northern Pacific railroad company, is in the city en route to the Yellowstone National Park, where he expects to be employed about two months in taking views of nature's wonders there.

Mr Harry Brown, the very clever comedian with the Fay Templeton company, visited Portland some six years ago and will no doubt be very pleasantly remembered by old theater goers. Mr Brown played for several months at New Market theater when it was under the management of F W Bert and belonged to the company of which Jas A Herne was the leading man.

Mr Justice Miller of the supreme court of the United States with his wife, daughter and grand daughter are in this city having lately returned from a trip to Alaska. They will visit Clatsop for a few days and on returning leave for home by way of Garrison and Salt Lake. Judge Miller expresses himself as delighted with the Alaska trip and the wonderful scenery of that region.

AMUSEMENTS

THE MASCOTTE.—The Fay Templeton Company gave "The Mascotte" last night to a crowded house. This opera has been presented here so often of late that it lacked the charm of novelty. Its generous applause and good humor of those who heard it are guides. It scored a success.

This afternoon La Belle Coquette and to-night Fatinitza, neither of which we believe were ever before presented in Portland. There is a general desire to hear Fatinitza, several of the melodies being familiar. However, the company have ... and it does not matter what opera ... the house would be filled. The ... The Truth About La Camas

Is that it is the only place in the Northwest unaffected by the present dull times.

Its magnificent water power and its fine location backed by its large capital, must make it always as it is now, the liveliest town in the Northwest.

Its people are principally new men from the East who have brought large capital and abundant enterprise with them.

It is the best place in all this country for new comers to make a start in business or to get work.

It is not a real estate speculation, and has no real estate boomers.

It costs only $1 (for the round trip) and a few hours time to go and see it.

Take the steamer "Traveler" at the foot of Morrison street, Portland, at 2 30 P. M. daily.

THE EAST SIDE

BAD LANGUAGE

The charge against Mrs Annie Kleemann of using abusive and obscene language in the presence of ladies, preferred by Georgie Sullivan, was tried before Justice Coleman yesterday afternoon. Prosecuting witness and a friend named Anna ... both of them aged 16 years, swore that defendant used the language imputed to her in their hearing, the same severely reflecting on the character of the family of complainant, while defendant and a Mrs Green, who was in her company at the time the alleged offense occurred, as positively swore that no such language was used, the latter scouting at the possibility of such a thing and stating that during an intimate acquaintance of six months or more she had never heard a vile word escape the defendant's lips. With this evidence to work upon counsel made their deductions of law and fact resulting in the court finding defendant guilty as charged. At the request of counsel for defendant the fine was fixed at $45 in order to admit of the case being appealed, which will be done. W. T. Burney for the state, B. R. Harrington for defendant.

FROM THE COAST

Messrs W F Crelly, J B Byrnes and ... West arrived home from Long Beach yesterday. From them some interesting notes are learned concerning the campers. A hunting party consisting of A J Knott, A H Breyman, J B Byrnes, J B Lane, John Payne and Frank Hecht made a three days excursion up the beach toward Oysterville and returned with three ... dozen grouse. There are about 300 persons now at the East Portland camping grounds all enjoying themselves to their hearts content. It has been decided to erect a dancing platform on the grounds and suitable subscriptions have been raised for that purpose. ... is leading a happy life on his ranch about ... and a half mile above Long Beach and the excellence of the vegetables he is raising is vouched for by the campers.

THE BEST YET

J B Byrnes while at the beach killed four grouse in succession and eight ... on the wing with a Winchester rifle, 44 calibre.

FROM MOUNT HOOD

Messrs. Perry Magness, William Peasley, John Hall, William Kerns and brother, who left here about six weeks ago to explore Mount Hood, have returned home. They camped near the snow line Thursday evening last and about 3 o'clock next morning commenced the ascent. They traveled about four hours and came within a quarter of a mile of the summit when a wide fissure stopped their progress. Their return journey is reported as very rapid, the method of locomotion adopted however being disastrous to their unmentionables, necessitating the party resolving themselves into a sewing circle upon their arrival at camp. After the necessary repairs being adjusted the party started for home and, notwithstanding their disappointment and misfortunes, feel a hundred per cent better for the trip.

NOTES

Kate McCormick leaves to-day to join his family at Long Beach.

The upper rooms of the new wing of the North school (Holladay's addition) have just been completed.

Rev D C Ghormley of the Presbyterian church having completed his vacation will occupy his pulpit as usual hereafter.

Though but a shadow of his former self the friends of Dr Harry Lane were glad to meet his genial face on the streets yesterday.

Bids for the Harrington brick will be received by Otto Kleeman, architect, up till Tuesday next, and for the Logus brick up till Wednesday. The former will be 100 feet on Fourth street by 60 feet on H.

Joseph Burkhard proposes to build a pork packing house 40x100 feet, one story and basement, on the corner of L and Second streets. Mr Krumbein is the architect, and will receive bids for the same.

C O Blakely received the contract for the Logus frame on the corner of Fourth and K for $1993. The highest bid was $3000. It will be 60 feet front by 60 deep. The total cost, including sidewalk, will be about $2100.

Mr A S Cogswell dropping a lighted lamp on a pile of shavings in the basement of his residence on the corner of Seventeenth and N streets caused an alarm of fire about ten minutes to 5 o'clock yesterday morning. An incipient blaze caused thereby was soon extinguished by means at hand, but the engine had reached Eleventh and L streets before its needlessness became known. John Fxon again receives the reward offered for furnishing the alarm. And by the way it would appear more just for the city to pay this reward than the fire company.

Perfume Consumption

Low Hill Outlet

From the fact that Europe and British India use about 150 000 gallons of handkerchief perfume yearly, the business of raising sweet scents in flowers must be very great. It is also stated that the English revenue from eau de cologne is 40 000 annually and that the total ... of other perfumes is estimated at 5,000 000 annually. At Cannes, in France, there is one perfume distillery which uses yearly 100 000 pounds of acacia flowers, 140 000 pounds of rare flower leaves, 32,000 pounds of jasmine blossoms and 20 000 pounds of tuberose blossoms, besides an immense quantity of other material.

PANAMA CANAL ESTIMATES.

San Francisco Bulletin

The recent severe criticisms of the work done on the Panama canal and the management of the great enterprise have resulted in a long review of the statements of the critics by P Huerne, one of the contractors for dredging. It was stated by Rear Admiral Shufeldt and others that the estimates of the cubic meters of earth and mud to be excavated had been constantly increased until now according to the former they reach the enormous amount of 160 000,000 cubic meters, while the cost of excavating has increased from 50 cents per cubic meter to $1 90 in some cases. A considerable increase in the estimates of work to be done would indicate a serious error in the original estimates of the engineers. But Mr Huerne claims that the apparent increase that has been made is not an actual increase, but that the adverse showing is the result of a misunderstanding of the facts by those who have written against the canal. It is true that the original figures from which the hostile writers get their information fix the amount of excavation at 72 958 011 cubic meters while more recent computations by canal engineers show 120 000 000. This apparent discrepancy is explained as follows:

In making the original estimates tables were prepared giving the amount of excavating to be done above the water with the character of soil and cost per cubic yard for each kind, and a similar table for the dredging beneath the water. The excavation above the water level was estimated at 47 ... 610 cubic meters, cost ... $46 000 949 33. The prices for excavating this portion of the canal were 38 1 10 cents, $1 71 and $3 71 per cubic meter according to the character of the soil. The excavation beneath the water level was estimated to be 25 549 406 cubic meters to cost $3 886 408 70. Thus the apparent total cost of excavating was originally fixed at $81 887 358 25, or $20 000 000 more than the 122 000 000 cubic meters of Rear Admiral Shufeldt would cost at the 50 cents per cubic meter which he thought was the average estimate. The prices for excavating beneath the water level as originally fixed are 38 1 10 cents, $1 14, $3 42, $6 68 per cubic meter according to the character of the work done. The general average gives $1 12 as the average cost per cubic meter for excavating the canal. Yet the original estimates did not stop here, but added a lump sum of $19 030 000 for basins, ports, jetties, etc., bringing up the total cost to $100 937 358 25.

Later estimates give a higher figure for the excavations. But this increased labor is only apparent and is due to a different method of setting forth the work to be done. In this later report the excavation is estimated at 120 000 000 cubic meters of which 40 000 000 cubic meters were to be dredged. This apparently contradicted the first report, but examination of the report shows that the first had reference to the canal proper and that the cost of excavating harbors, basins and other work not conducted with the canal ditch was included in the lump sum of $19 030 000. The cubic meters to be excavated and dredged for this work were not given in the first report, but were included in figures of the second report, which makes the apparent increase in the amount of excavating and dredging to be done. The second estimates have not therefore made any change in the original figures, but have only made more definite statements as to the work to be done.

Of the 80 000 000 cubic meters of dry excavation there had been excavated July 1 1884 ... 600 000, leaving 74 400 000 yet to be excavated. There are now at work on the canal 14 000 men and excavation will soon be increased to 1 400 000 cubic meters per month. At this rate there will be excavated by the end of 1889 the enormous amount of 75 000 000 cubic meters or more than the estimates call for. The dredges will be able to keep up with the work above the water level so that there is little danger of the time fixed for the completion of the canal being exceeded.

Lieut R M G Brown of the United States navy, in a report to the secretary of the navy, comes to about the same conclusions as has Rear Admiral Shufeldt, and like the latter thinks that the lapse of one half the time and the great expenditures in preliminary work make it clear that the canal cannot be finished in 1888 or for the sum that was originally estimated. In this connection the official report of De Lesseps to the stockholders of the canal company made July 25 is of interest. With regard to the finances he said that the company had besides one half of the capital which had not yet been ... 129 000 000 francs in reserve. Besides ... the United States of Colombia has given the company 500 000 hectares of land with all the mines it may contain in such regions as the company may choose, and last December the Colombian government transferred to the company 150 000 hectares as an equivalent for about one third of the work to be performed. This land has been selected by the engineers of the company and ... the Panama railroad and the results already ... at justify, says M de Lesseps, the ... manifested by the shareholders. ... only, said he, are we in a position to affirm to-day that nothing up to this ... arisen to interfere with its completion in 1888 ... we are able to show that this promise ...

For years this process has gone on ... the price of tan bark is exorbitant in San Francisco, and inferior in quality ... culture of the Australian black wattle, or Acacia, has been seriously begun in southern California and on a large scale, with the hope thus to furnish bark for tanning purposes. The subject of forest protection has attracted considerable discussion in California, but as yet no effective state action has been taken, and ... delayed the forests will hardly be worth rescuing. Permanent forest reserves such as those of South Australia, where the director of the botanical garden was empowered to withdraw large tracts of public lands from entry and to take steps to protect them, are needed at once on the Pacific coast. Steps to re-examine titles to timber lands already alienated in all cases where suspicion of fraud in ... are as evidently demanded ... use of government forest reserves for pasturage by sheep and goats should be forbidden by law. The entire subject must be taken from the ... of ordinary politics and approached by legislators in the light of the ... and experience of ... nations and ... of the United States.

He managed to ingratiate himself with this latter individual and in the course of the next few weeks, during which time he still paid occasional visits ... to my friend, became quite intimate with the servant. It ended in the concierge being arrested one fine day on a charge of having stolen the plate. This was brought about partly by something the detective had seen in the concierge's room, but chiefly on account of what he had heard at a place where a number of the agents or brokers for stolen goods used to congregate for business and to which the detective went in the character of a thief. The culprit was thus discovered and the thief was duly punished.

A LANDLORD'S DEFENSE.

ALBANY, Or., Aug 22

To THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

In your Wednesday's paper a correspondent remarked that the proprietor of the Revere house has been severely criticized by visiting firemen for severe treatment. In justice to myself I wish to ask that when a large body of men visit a town and the landlord throws his house open to them, gives them access to parlors, gives them all the liberties that could reasonably be asked for, lets them occupy the best rooms in the house and then charges his regular prices, if that should be termed severe treatment? If so then the firemen from abroad have been very severely treated at the Revere house. If the firemen did not find arrangements made for keeping them during their stay here as they perhaps expected, they should not blame me for it, for that was a matter for the committee of arrangements to attend to if they felt inclined to do so. All I could and did do was to treat the firemen the same as everybody else who stopped at my house during the time. I have conducted the Revere house for the last seven years with the very best of success, and think I shall continue to run it on the same plan notwithstanding your correspondent and a few others seem to be displeased with the management.

INGERSOLL'S ORATORY.

Yesterday I was complimenting Colonel Ingersoll upon his quiet and mild way of speaking. He said: "My idea of public speaking is that you are going upon a journey. You walk slowly along a beautiful road, you come to a little path leading off to the right, you take it and walk down the hill under the shade of the trees. You cross over the little brook and through the meadow to a lovely old spring, take a drink and sit down upon a mossy log. Directly you climb over a fence and pick a beautiful little flower. Thus you are at the end of your journey. Most speakers exhaust themselves and think that they have exhausted their subject."

CITY.

[illegible]—A most disgraceful affray [illegible] Zorn's saloon at the corner of [illegible] streets about 6 o'clock last [illegible] three fishermen were severely [illegible] receiving wounds upon the head [illegible]. The three fishermen had [illegible] the dive guzzling beer for some [illegible] began quarreling among them[illegible] picked up a chair each and [illegible] at one another. One of the [illegible] chandelier near the door, knocking [illegible] and then Zorn's old Adam was [illegible] his barkeeper took a hand in the [illegible] Zorn is well known here [illegible] saloon business for over a dozen [illegible] to be a very decent fellow, but a [illegible] keeping has a tendency to blunt [illegible], and now Zorn is only a fair [illegible] the dive keeper. An OREGONIAN [illegible] Zorn's and his barkeeper's [illegible] also a statement of a disinter[illegible] who was an eye-witness [illegible] differ materially and as [illegible] the disinterested witness is [illegible] given below. When the [illegible] Zorn yelled at them to stop [illegible] them. As he approached he re[illegible] side of the face from one of the [illegible] then separated and went toward [illegible] to the rear of the saloon and [illegible] wooden faucet with which he ad[illegible] the fishermen, and yelling to him [illegible] him over the head inflicting a [illegible] the blood flowed profusely. He [illegible] several times and then attacked [illegible] picking up a chair and attack[illegible] men were badly used up and Dr [illegible] up the wound on the head of the [illegible] injured, says that there is danger [illegible] Chas. Mullen, a hanger on of the [illegible] part in the row, received an ac[illegible] head. He swore out a warrant [illegible] and Zorn's barkeeper was ar[illegible] and gave bail for his appearance [illegible] frequented by a very rough crowd [illegible] called an orderly place. It is [illegible] of the injured fishermen will [illegible] complaint.

[illegible]—The Chinese seem de[illegible] the papers with an item every [illegible] are dull. Yesterday Ah Lung [illegible] and attempted to put a bullet [illegible] of Ah Fie. The latter is the ac[illegible] man who was noticed yesterday [illegible] the hatchet in Chen Chung's shoul[illegible] refused admittance to the Chi[illegible] Fie was released on $500 bail [illegible]. The friends of Chen Chung held [illegible] and Ah Fie's friends agreed [illegible] the doctor bill and damages [illegible] Chung. But the sense of the [illegible] would be disgraceful for them [illegible] such a case, and they determined [illegible] blood. A reward was accord[illegible] killing of Ah Fie. So about [illegible] saw Ah Fie on the sidewalk [illegible] and Alder and hauling out [illegible] away at him. The first shot [illegible] by, the second hit Ah Fie in [illegible] the forearm and passing up the [illegible] above the elbow. The would-be [illegible], but was captured by policeman [illegible] to the city jail. He gave bail last [illegible] was set at liberty. Ah Fie was [illegible] office where his wound was [illegible]. It is fortunate that no in[illegible] shot in the affair. It is a pity that [illegible] shooters and choppers could not be [illegible] but the probability is that wit[illegible] such cases be brought for [illegible] for all the guilty parties.

OREGON AND WASHINGTON TRADE.—[illegible] that there has been trouble [illegible] lines, and that the rates are [illegible] San Francisco. Under the divi[illegible] the Northern Pacific and O. R. & N. [illegible] from to Portland and points on [illegible] account of the rivalry be[illegible] railroads forming the southern [illegible] Francisco rates are so low [illegible] recently firms in San [illegible] been guaranteed from 5 to [illegible] rates. These merchants [illegible] offered it to their correspond[illegible] other Sound ports and the re[illegible], will be the diversion of a great [illegible] to San Francisco for points in [illegible] Oregon unless this state of af[illegible] the northern lines. This is not likely [illegible], and the cut in rates to San Fran[illegible] materially assist the San Francisco [illegible] Oregon trade. Committees [illegible] San Francisco with this object [illegible] unlikely that under the low [illegible] San Francisco Portland and Puget [illegible] to a considerable extent be sup[illegible] goods coming from San Francisco.

[illegible]—Yesterday forenoon a respec[illegible] was noticed sitting on the edge [illegible] drug store in the [illegible] thermometer was away up in [illegible] he was hunting the shady [illegible] attracted some attention and [illegible] the drug store began to think that [illegible] wrong with him that [illegible] another mesmerized man or a crank [illegible] was liable to do some one bodily [illegible] of Policeman Ward was called [illegible] there as if he had taken a con[illegible] the sidewalk. After watching him [illegible] coming to the conclusion that he [illegible] Ward stepped up and told [illegible] presence was deemed undesirable by [illegible] adjoining store who wished him [illegible] there was nothing to fear from [illegible] suffering from ague and as he had no [illegible] came out there when his chill came [illegible] himself in the sun. Just how that sort [illegible] might operate is uncertain but with [illegible] at 88 even a very chilly man ought [illegible] up in short order.

SWIMMING RACES.—Under the auspices [illegible] Rowing Club two swimming races [illegible] this afternoon. One race is confined [illegible] the club who take great interest in [illegible] other is a free for all, race distance [illegible] first prize $10, second $5, which will [illegible] all the fast swimmers in Portland [illegible] up for the purpose of finding [illegible] the fastest swimmer. As this is [illegible] of this kind ever attempted on the [illegible] no doubt draw a large crowd of specta[illegible] rowing members of the W. R. C. will [illegible] club race of 100 yards: John Gill, J [illegible], D. Monroe, F. T. Higgins, E. P. [illegible] H. Epting, A. Burr, J. S. Dun[illegible], L. Farrar, A. B. McAlpin, A. B. [illegible]. Start will be at 5 P. M. from a float [illegible] foot of Taylor street, the finish [illegible]. All entries for the free for all [illegible] made by 5 P. M. to J. S. Dunbar.

[illegible] MIXED.—In mentioning the [illegible] Northern Pacific's rolling stock from [illegible], the entire complication of own[illegible]. The Puget Sound shore does [illegible] entire northern half of the link. It [illegible] over the line of the Columbia [illegible] Sound railway (the narrow gauge [illegible] right of way for the last nine [illegible] jointly by the coal road and the narrow [illegible] nine miles there are three rails [illegible]. The terminal grounds and water [illegible] are owned by the coal road. Now [illegible] improvement company owns all the [illegible] coal road and the Oregon and Transcon[illegible] company owns the stock of the P[illegible]. It might be possible to have a [illegible] ownership of thirty miles of com[illegible] but even half a feat would not be easy.

[illegible]—Said a prominent busi[illegible] man to an OREGONIAN reporter yesterday: [illegible] the other day about the slow pro[illegible] negotiations between the O. R. & N. and the [illegible] relative to the lease. I think I can [illegible] July earnings of the O. R. & N. [illegible]. It is the dullest freight month of [illegible] the first half of August is [illegible] either way. The North[illegible] testing the report of light earnings [illegible] is not such a good piece of [illegible] all, and we have bid too high for it [illegible] drive a hard bargain. [illegible] in soon and earnings for Sep[illegible] towards a half a million. Then [illegible] will change its views relative to the [illegible] O. R. & N. and will be more inclined to [illegible]

[illegible] BY SAIL.—Woolgrowers have again [illegible] opportunity of shipping their wool [illegible] by sailing vessel at low rates [illegible] William H. [illegible] is advertised [illegible] and take wool in pressed bales at one [illegible]. Considering that insurance is on [illegible] on the voyage it permits wool [illegible] and virtually stored for the winter [illegible] best eastern markets [illegible] for the [illegible]. Salmon packers are taking [illegible] on berth for New York and have [illegible] considerable engagements.

[illegible] BUTLER.—The will of James H. [illegible] recently died in Colorado, was admitted [illegible] the county court yesterday. He bequeaths [illegible] Butler of New Bedford, Mass. [illegible] Kane, of this city, and the remain[illegible] property to his wife Martha C. Butler [illegible] executor without bonds.

[illegible] PASSENGERS.—Passed Heron yesterday [illegible] to day: W. C. Peckham, Rev. George [illegible] Barrett, G. S. Rown and wife, R. K. [illegible] Hyde, Susie H. Hall, W. Sherwood, [illegible] — Weil, Mrs. Heyn, Albert [illegible]

TO RECEIVE THEIR WOE.—The noble red man appears to have an unquenchable thirst for whisky, and, judging by the number of white men brought before the United States court for selling liquor to Indians he appears to find plenty ready to assist him in assuaging it. Yesterday Peter Henrichsen and Alfred M. Grant from the region round about Yaquina bay were brought in by Deputy U. S. Marshal Pygall of Corvallis. An old smoke-dried siwash came along as a witness. He says the prisoners offered him whisky but he would not have the bottle placed to his lips. They then gave the fire water to another member of the tribe who partook. The old fellow then complained of them having evidently a desire to see fulfilled the passage "Woe unto him who putteth the bottle to his neighbor's lips." The prisoners are of the opinion that they are guilty as they were drunk at the time. They will have an ex[illegible] motion to day.

SINGULAR ACCIDENT.—J. H. Scriber, son of C. W. Scriber of Salem, met with a serious accident while out hunting with Alfred Coolidge of Silverton on Wednesday last. The two young men were hunting on Mr. Mulk's farm five miles above Silverton and becoming tired lay down under a tree to rest. Coolidge in turning over a rock his foot against one of the guns discharging both barrels, the contents of one going through Scriber's left leg, cutting the flesh to the bone and making a fearful wound. The charge from the other barrel went into the heel of his right foot and lodged there. It was feared the foot would have to be amputated but Dr. Davis, who was called in, has hopes of saving it.

SLUICING AT WALKER'S ISLAND.—Three steamer Walla Walla went down to Walker's Island Thursday and began sluicing out the bar there. A cut of about 1000 feet is to be made, the principal object being not so much to secure additional depth as to take out the extreme curvature of the channel, which has given long vessels a great deal of trouble this season. It will take about ten days for the steamer to complete the work. Martin's Island bar has given little trouble so far this year. A survey is now being made and if more depth is found necessary and the steamer can be secured, the bar will be sluiced.

ARRESTED.—Peter Cunningham and A. Sass, two of the fishermen beaten at Adam Zorn's saloon yesterday afternoon, were arrested last evening on charges of drunk and disorderly preferred by Zorn. After selling them beer all the afternoon it would be singular if there were not sufficient grounds for the charge. Between letting Zorn to make the fellows drunk and then collecting his fees from them for being disorderly the city should accumulate wealth at a rapid rate.

NEEDS OVERHAULING.—The mail facilities from Astoria to Oysterville need the attention of Captain Tuttle or some one else in authority. The service is simply abominable. A gentleman who called yesterday said he received two out of eight OREGONIANS mailed to him, and this is but one instance of many reported. The trouble is all along the above route.

THE DELAYED TRAINS.—The break in the Northern Pacific at Glendive has been repaired and freight and express matter was received yesterday. Passengers by two delayed trains will arrive here Sunday. Those to arrive this morning are probably persons who got on west of the break, though this is not known.

REORGANIZED.—The money order office has been reorganized by the advancement of Mr. Annuck as money order clerk, Mr. Fallenius retiring. Mr. Morris Ball, who for many years was connected with the house of W. Gallick, enters as assistant to Mr. Annuck.

THE USUAL SATURDAY REGIRA.—The favorite Wide West will take out a large number to the seaside this afternoon at 2 and at 9 P. M. the Lurline will start on the regular weekly trip in the same direction. The Fleetwood is off at 9 A. M. Sunday.

THE NEW SHIPPING LAW.

The following private letter which we are permitted to publish will be of interest to all persons connected with the merchant marine:

WASHINGTON, Aug 12, 1884.

Mr. F. G. Bosworth, Ship Broker, 54 Front street, Portland, Oregon—Sir: I am in receipt of your communication of the 4th instant, with reference to the operation of the shipping act of June 26, 1884, in prohibiting payment of advance wages.

In reply I desire to state that while appreciating the embarrassments referred to by you, which attend the shipping of seamen by reason of such change in the law, I am of opinion that such embarrassments will be but temporary, and that the shipping business of the country will soon adapt itself to the new conditions prescribed by the law.

However this may be, it is considered to be the duty of this office to administer the law as it is found, and in doing so it does not consider it as within the province to give any construction to the law as to its effect upon the rights or liabilities of private parties, except in so far as it may become necessary to do so in the administration of its duties.

In this connection you are referred to the enclosed copy of a letter from this office, addressed to Captain J. G. Baker at Baltimore, under date of the 4th instant.

Very respectfully,
JARVIS PATTEN,
Commissioner of Navigation.

The enclosure referred to is as follows:

TREASURY DEPARTMENT, BUREAU OF NAVIGATION,
WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug 4, 1884.

Captain J. G. Baker, of ship John Rosenfeld, Baltimore, Md.—Sir: Your letter of the 2d instant is received. In answer to your inquiry respecting crew for your ship I can only refer you to the United States shipping commissioner for your port, who I presume will furnish your men as soon as possible under the law. I am sorry that the new law (act of June 26, 1884) should produce embarrassment, but as the framers of section 10 of the act had in view the ultimate good of the service I hope that shipmasters will stand out boldly for the law against those who would break it, remembering that no reform which involves the breaking up of a long established custom can be effected without some sacrifice.

Very respectfully,
JAMES PATTEN,
Commissioner of Navigation.

BRIEF MENTION.

La Belle Coquette at matinee to-day.

Fatinitza by the Fay Templeton company to-night.

Jasper Dougherty returned yesterday from the coast.

August Rendel, the insane man, was taken to the asylum yesterday.

Mr. and Mrs. Beabwish [illegible] gratefully acknowledge the kindness and beautiful floral offerings tendered at the funeral of their little baby Percy.

After a long residence on Washington and Tenth streets Mr. D. W. Wakefield has removed to the northeast corner of Main and Eighth streets.

Walter Ball of Sellwood was arrested yesterday on a charge of killing a dog belonging to O. Gates. His case will be tried in Justice Davis' court this morning.

The bark Belle of Oregon is making active preparations for sailing. She will be the first vessel that leaves this port under the new law relating to the payment of wages to sailors.

Lost last evening between Thirteenth and Yamhill streets and east side landing of Stark street ferry a gold enameled bar pin set with pearls and garnets. A liberal reward will be paid if left at Henrichsen & Greenberg's.

Rev. Father Bouchard will deliver a lecture at the Catholic cathedral on to-morrow evening on "The Unity of the Church." The proceeds are to be applied toward purchasing the large stained glass window for the front of the cathedral.

The cheerful cry of the peddler of sweet cider is heard on the street once more. It will recall to many memories of early autumn days of long ago, when armed with a straw they visited the old fashioned cider mill and drunk to repletion of cider, sweet cider, sweet cider from the bung.

PERSONAL

J. J. Fowler of Glencoe is in the city.

Miss Lillie Murray returned yesterday from Tillamook.

Dr. Harry Lane is able to be on the street again but is still weak. He will go down to the beach in a day or two for a short stay.

Rev. R. T. Hall of Mt. Vernon, Ohio, who is announced to preach at the First Congregational church to-morrow, is a brother in law of President Ellis of Forest Grove. He is an able and scholarly man and an excellent preacher.

C. F. Watkins, official photographer of the Northern Pacific railroad company, is in the city en route to the Yellowstone National Park, where he expects to be employed about two months in taking views of nature's wonders there.

Mr. Harry Brown, the very clever comedian with the Fay Templeton company, visited Portland some six years ago, and will no doubt be very pleasantly remembered by old theater goers. Mr. Brown played for several months at New Market theater when it was under the management of F. W. Bert, and belonged to the company of which Jas. A. Herne was the leading man.

Mr. Justice Miller of the supreme court of the United States, with his wife, daughter and granddaughter, are in this city, having lately returned from a trip to Alaska. They will visit Clatsop for a few days and on returning leave [illegible] by way of Garrison and Salt Lake. Judge Miller expresses himself as delighted with the Alaska trip and the wonderful scenery of that region.

AMUSEMENTS

THE MASCOTTE.—The Fay Templeton Company gave The Mascotte last night to a crowded house. The opera has been presented here so often of late that it lacked the charm of novelty. If generous applause [illegible] those who heard it are [illegible] a success.

This afternoon La Belle Coquette and to-night Fatinitza, neither of which we believe were ever before presented in Portland. [illegible] several of the [illegible] familiar. However, the company have [illegible] and it does not matter what opera [illegible] the house would be filled. The Truth About La Camas

Is that it is the only place in the Northwest which [illegible] present inducements.

[illegible] power and its fine location backed by its large capital must make it always as it is now the liveliest town in the Northwest.

Its people are principally new men from the East, who have brought large capital and abundant enterprise with them.

It is the best place in all this country for new comers to make a start in business or to get work.

It is not a real estate speculation and has no real estate boomers.

It costs only $1 (for the round trip) and a few hours' time to go and see it.

Take the steamer "Traveler" at the foot of Morrison street, Portland, at 2:30 P. M. daily.

THE EAST SIDE.

BAD LANGUAGE

The charge against Mrs. Annie Freemann of using abusive and obscene language in the presence of ladies, preferred by Georgie Sullivan, was tried before Justice Coleman yesterday afternoon. Prosecuting witness and a friend named Anna K[illegible], both of them aged 16 years, swore that defendant used the language imputed to her in their hearing, the same severely reflecting on the character of the family of complainant, while defendant and a Mrs. Green, who was in her company at the time the alleged offense occurred, as positively swore that no such language was used, the latter scouting at the possibility of such a thing and stating that during an intimate acquaintance of six months or more she had never heard a vile word escape the defendant's lips. With this evidence to work upon counsel made their deductions of law and fact resulting in the court finding defendant guilty as charged. At the request of counsel for defendant the fine was fixed at $25 in order to admit of the case being appealed, which will be done. W. T. Burney for the state, S. R. Harrington for defendant.

FROM THE COAST

Messrs. W. J. Crelty, J. B. Byrnes and Son, W. [illegible] arrived home from Long Beach yesterday. From them some interesting facts are learned concerning the campers. A hunting party consisting of A. [illegible] Knott, A. H. Brannan, J. B. Byrnes, J. B. Lark, John Payne and Frank Fucht made a three days' excursion up the beach toward Oysterville and returned with three deer and three dozen grouse. There are about 300 persons now at the East Portland camping grounds, all enjoying themselves to their hearts' content. It has been decided to erect a landing platform on the grounds, an enlarged script [illegible] have been raised for that purpose. [illegible] leading a happy life on his ranch at [illegible] and a half mile above [illegible] Beach and the excellence of the vegetables he is raising [illegible] by the campers.

THE [illegible]

J. B. Byrnes while at the beach killed three [illegible] in succession and eight [illegible] one flight on the wing with a Winchester rifle. [illegible]

FROM MOUNT HOOD

Messrs. Jerry Magness, William Teasley, J. [illegible] William Kerts and brother, who left here about two weeks ago to explore Mount Hood, have returned home. They camped near the snow line Friday evening last and at about 4 o'clock next morning commenced the ascent. They traveled about four hours and came within a quarter of a mile of the crest, when a wide fissure stopped their progress. Their return journey is reported as very rapid, the method of locomotion adopted, however being disastrous to their unmentionables, necessitating the party resolving themselves into a sewing circle upon their arrival at camp. After the necessary repairs being adjusted the party started for home, and notwithstanding their disappointment and misfortunes feel a hundred per cent better for the trip.

NOTES

Lute McCormick leaves to day to join his family at Long Beach.

The upper rooms of the new wing of the North school (Holladay's addition) have just been completed.

Rev. D. O. Ghormley, of the Presbyterian church, having completed his vacation, will occupy his pulpit as usual hereafter.

Though but a shadow of his former self the friends of Dr. Harry Lane were glad to meet his genial face on the streets yesterday.

Bids for the Harrington brick will be received by Otto Kleemann, architect, up till Tuesday next, and for the Logus brick up till Wednesday. The former will be 100 feet on Fourth street by 60 feet on H.

Joseph Burkhard proposes to build a pork packing house 40x100 feet, one story and basement, on the corner of L and Second streets. Mr. Krumbein is the architect, and will receive bids for the same.

C. C. Blakely received the contract for the Logus frame on the corner of Fourth and K for $1935. The highest bid was $30[illegible]. It will be 60 feet front by 50 deep. The total cost, including sidewalk, will be about $2100.

Mr. A. S. Cogswell dropping a lighted lamp on a pile of shavings in the basement of his residence on the corner of Seventeenth and N streets caused an alarm of fire about ten minutes to 5 o'clock yesterday morning. An incipient blaze caused thereby was soon extinguished by means at hand, but the engine had reached Eleventh and L streets before its need[lessness] became known. John Fitch again receives the reward offered for furnishing the team. And by the way it would appear more just for the city to pay this reward than the fire company.

Perfume Consumption.

Lowell Courier.

[illegible] that Europe and British India consume about 150,000 gallons of handkerchief perfume yearly, the business of raising sweet-scented flowers must be very great. It is a statistic of the English revenue, you may be [illegible] annually and that the total revenue of other perfumes is estimated at $200,000 annually. At Cannes in France there is one perfume distillery which uses yearly 100,000 pounds of acacia flowers, 140,000 pounds of rare flower leaves, 32,000 pounds of jasmine blossoms and 20,000 pounds of tuberose blossoms, besides an immense quantity of other material.

The New York Tea Store is now open at the old stand, where they are selling choice teas, coffees, spices, etc., cheaper than ever. They are determined to do business, and their old customers as well as new ones will get the benefit of bed-rock prices.

PANAMA CANAL ESTIMATES.

San Francisco Bulletin

The recent severe criticisms of the work done on the Panama canal and the management of that great enterprise have resulted in a long review of the statements of the critics by [illegible] Huerne, one of the contractors for dredging. It was stated by Rear Admiral Shufeldt and others that the estimates of the cubic meters of earth and mud to be excavated had been constantly increased until now, according to the former, they reach the enormous amount of [illegible] 000,000 cubic meters, while the cost of excavation has increased from 50 cents per cubic meter to $1 90 in some cases. A considerable increase in the estimates of work to be done would indicate a serious error in the original estimates of the engineers. But Mr. Huerne claims that the apparent increase that has been made is not an actual increase, but that the adverse showing is the result of a misunderstanding of the facts by those who have written against the canal. It is true that the original figures from which the hostile writers get their information fix the amount of excavation at 72,968,000 cubic meters, while more recent computations by canal engineers show 120,000,000. This apparent discrepancy is explained as follows:

In making the original estimates tables were prepared, giving the amount of excavation to be done above the water, with the amount of soil and cost per cubic yard [illegible], and a similar table for the dredging beneath the water. The excavation above the water level was estimated at 37,0[illegible] cubic [illegible], costing $46,000,[illegible]. The prices for excavating this portion of the canal were [illegible] to [illegible] $1 71 and $3 71 per cubic meter, according to the character of the soil. The excavation beneath the water level was estimated to be [illegible] 400 cubic meters, to cost $[illegible] 885,408 79. Thus the apparent total cost of excavating was originally fixed at $81,887,[illegible], or $21,000,000 more than the 132,000,000 [illegible] cubic meters of Rear Admiral Shufeldt, which at a cost of [illegible] cents per cubic meter, which [illegible] thought was the average estimate. The prices for excavation beneath the water level as originally fixed are [illegible] cents, $1 11, $3 [illegible] $6 65 per cubic meter, according to the character of the work done. The general average gives $1 12 as the average cost per cubic meter for excavating the canal. Yet the original estimates did not stop here, but added a lump sum of $19,050,000 for basins, ports, jetties, etc., bringing up the total cost to $100,937,358 25.

Later estimates give a higher figure for the excavations. But this increase later is only apparent, and is due to a different method of setting forth the work to be done. In this later report the excavation is estimated at 120,000,000 cubic meters, of which 41,000,000 cubic meters were to be dredged. This apparently contradicted the first report, but examination of the report shows that the first had reference to the canal proper, and that the cost of excavating harbors, basins and other work not connected with the canal ditch was included in the lump sum of $19,050,000. The cubic meters to be excavated and dredged for this work were not given in the first report, but were included in figures of the second report, which makes the apparent increase in the amount of excavating and dredging to be done. The second estimates have not therefore made any change in the original figures but have only made more definite statements as to the work to be done.

Of the 80,000,000 cubic meters of dry excavation there had been excavated July 1, 1884, [illegible] 600,000, leaving 74,400,000 yet to be excavated. There are now at work on the canal 18,000 men and excavation will soon be increased to 1,400,000 cubic meters per month. At this rate there will be excavated by the end of 1888 the enormous amount of 75,600,000 cubic meters, or more than the estimates call for. The dredges will be able to keep up with the work above the water level so that there is little danger of the time fixed for the completion of the canal being exceeded.

Lieut. R. W. G. Brown, of the United States navy, in a report to the secretary of the navy comes to about the same conclusions as has Rear Admiral Shufeldt, and like the latter thinks that the lapse of one half the time and the great expenditures in preliminary work make it clear that the canal cannot be finished in 1888, or for the sum that was originally estimated. In this connection the official report of De Lesseps to the stockholders of the canal company made July 25, is of interest. With regard to the finances he said that the company had [illegible] half of the capital, which had not yet been called [illegible] 120,000,000 francs. [illegible] Besides money in United States [illegible] has given the company 500,000 hectares of land with all the minerals it may contain, in such positions as the company may choose, and last December the Colombian government transferred to the company 150,000 hectares as an equivalent for about one third of the work to be performed. This land has been selected by the engineers of the company, and it with the Panama railroad and its results [illegible] to [illegible] [illegible] Not only, said he, are we in a position to affirm to-day that nothing will prevent us [illegible] from with its completion in 1888, but we [illegible] to show that this promise and [illegible] years [illegible]

[illegible] price of the bark [illegible] San [illegible] and inferior material [illegible] of the Australian black wattle [illegible] has been seriously begun in [illegible] on a large scale [illegible] such bark for tanning purposes. The subject of forest protection has attracted considerable discussion in California, but as yet no decisive action has been taken, and it is to be hoped [illegible] forests will [illegible] with [illegible] for forest reserves such as [illegible] of South Australia, where the [illegible] of the botanical garden was empowered to withdraw large tracts of public lands from entry and to take steps to protect them, are needed at once on the Pacific coast. Steps to re-examine titles to timber lands already taken [illegible] in all cases where suspicion of fraud may arise are as evidently demanded. [illegible] the use of government forest reserves for pasturage by sheep and goats should be forbidden by law. A LANDLORD'S DEFENSE.

ALBANY, Or., Aug 22

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

In your Wednesday's paper a correspondent remarked that the proprietor of the Revere house has been severely criticised by visiting firemen for severe treatment. In justice to myself I wish to ask, that when a large body of men visit a town and the landlord throws his house open to them, gives them access to parlors, gives them all the liberties that could reasonably be asked for, lets them occupy the best rooms in the house, and then charges his regular prices, if that should be termed severe treatment. If so then the firemen from abroad have been very severely treated at the Revere house. If the firemen did not find arrangements made for keeping them during their stay here, as they perhaps expected, they should not blame me for it, for that was a matter for the committee of arrangements to attend to, if they felt inclined to do so. All I could and did do was to treat the firemen the same as everybody else who stopped at my house during the time. I have conducted the Revere house for the last seven years with the very best of success and think I shall continue to run it on the same plan, notwithstanding your correspondent and a few others seem to be displeased with the management.

INGERSOLL'S ORATORY.

Yesterday I was complimenting Colonel Ingersoll upon his quiet and mild way of speaking. He said: "My idea of public speaking is that you are going upon a journey. You walk slowly along a beautiful road, you come to a little path leading off to the right, you take it and walk down the hill under the shade of the trees. You cross over the little brook and through the meadow to a lovely cold spring, take a drink and sit down upon a mossy log. Directly you climb over a fence and pick a beautiful little flower. Thus you are at the end of your journey. Most speakers exhaust themselves and think that they have exhausted their subject."

PACIFIC COAST FORESTS.

Wholesale Abuses of the "Timber Act"—The Sheep Pastures of the Sierra—Probable Ruin of the Finest Conifers of the Continent—Botanical Features of the Woodlands.

New York Evening Post.

When Senator Kelly, of Oregon introduced his "Timber Act" into the forty-fourth congress, and was aided by such men as Sargent of California, and Oglesby, of Illinois, it was believed that its provisions were so stringent and amply fortified that they could not be infringed nor evaded. According to the theory of the act, public lands valuable for timber could be sold in tracts of 160 acres, only one such tract passing to one individual or association. On June 3, 1878, the act became a law, and for a time no fault was found with its workings. But this year, at least two instances have come to light in California, in which the plain provisions of the act were disobeyed, both being reported at length in San Francisco newspapers. In one case, by the use of "dummies," individuals secured government titles to extensive tracts of most valuable timber lands in what is known as the Georgetown Divide, in the Sierras. Two dollars and a half per acre was paid for forests of sugar pine (P. Lambertiana), yellow pine (p. ponderosa), giant balsam (Abies grandis), and other equally superb conifers, worth for mere stumpage ten times that price. In the other case exposed very extensive entries were made on red-wood lands in Humboldt county, and here a large association of speculators was interested. In cases like these $5 to $50 has been paid to men, chiefly laborers, to "enter up" lands for the concern.

What with forest fires, started by the carelessness of hunters and campers, the open thefts of land-grabbers, and the petty larceny of squatters and settlers on adjacent lands, the forest splendors of the Pacific coast region are fast disappearing. It is not long since that Sir Joseph Hooker, the eminent botanist, writing to the commissioners of the Yosemite valley, said: "We have ourselves witnessed the demolition of these great forests proceeding with a rapidity and recklessness that are unparalleled in the forest history of any other nation or country, which, if completed, will issue in rendering that fair state the scourge of alternating disastrous floods and still more disastrous droughts. While, in regard to the timber itself, the willful waste of it will be followed by woeful want." This is none too emphatic. The primeval forests that still cling about the sources of the Noyo, Navarro, Nacimiento, Trinity, Klamath, Gualala, upper Sacramento, Merced, Tuolumne, and dozens of other rivers of California, are needed for the protection of those streams, and must be kept inviolate.

The red wood forests of the coast are not easily destroyed, so great is the vitality of the roots, which sprout thriftily for years, and may still be forest lands long after lumbermen take off the valuable timber. It is however, the Sierra forests that if once lost cannot be restored and now, as for years, are at the mercy of every wandering tobacco pipe bearer, of every drunken herder and of every band of sheep. In order to understand this subject the reader needs to be told that the mountain counties of California are large, and extend in most cases from the summits of the Sierras to the borders of the lowlands of the great Central valley, and that many of the early settlers, living in the foothills, "took up" cattle and sheep ranges in the higher or forest belt, which varies from 6000 to 12,000 feet in altitude. It was long ago the custom to begin in April and drive the live stock from the valley farms, pasturing them on government lands, till in June and July the fresh spring like herbage of the Alpine region was reached. So many drovers from valley counties have adopted the use of these mountain pastures that no spot in all the Sierras, from King's river to Manzanita lake, is free from their ravages. The trouble is that sheep and goats destroy young trees and trample the ground so hard that few of the seeds that yearly fall from the old trees can take root. Because of this, and this only, there are many places in the California Alps where any botanist or arboriculturist will recognize the fact that the injury already done is, so far as this generation is concerned, irretrievable.

An æsthetic plea could easily be made against the trampling down of mountain azaleas, the ruining of the native wild flowers until some species are almost extinct, the desecration of haunts are lovely as the slopes of classic Ida. One explorer long ago described the wild lilies of Hetch Hetchy valley, fields of unnumbered blooms—the very next season bands of sheep destroyed them. The writer has seen clumps of cornelian-hued wild tiger lilies (L. Humboldtii) growing so rankly in the Sierra woods that fifty stalks bore from five to twenty blossoms apiece, and the tallest were higher than the waist of a man on horseback. But, though the floral treasures of the Sierra are unique, and their trampling is a source of grief to all nature lovers, it is not merely the beauty, but the very existence of California's coniferous forests that is threatened. If it were necessary evidence could here be given from the letters and public reports of dozens of nurserymen, botanists and intelligent travelers who have borne witness to the wholesale destruction caused by sheep and goats.

The entire Pacific coast produces about ninety species of trees, or only about half the number found in the Atlantic region, but in this list are a great many of more than ordinary timber value. The chief lack is in hard woods. In the Puget sound region and through the ravines of the Cascades, as well as in northern California, a few noble species of conifers occupy the forests and present a most imposing appearance. A distinguished botanist, who was equally familiar with the Deodar groves of the Himalayas, the Kauri forests of New Zealand, the Eucalyptus giants of Australia, and the palms of the Upper Amazon, once said to the writer that the unbroken forests of redwood and of sugar pine were the two noblest and most inspiring forest shrines left in the world. Besides these conifers, the Pacific coast forests contain the slender Douglas spruce, the yellow cedar (Chamæcyparis Nutkaensis), the white pine (P. Monticola), two hemlocks (Tsuga Mertensiana and T. Pattoniana), four or five species of Abies (grandis, Amabilis nobilis, and magnifica) several so-called cedars (of the Libocedrus, Thuja, and Cupressus genera), besides yews, junipers, and the rare Torreya or California nutmeg tree. Fourteen species of pine grow on the Pacific coast, and ten or twelve species of oaks. The most interesting of the small trees and shrubs that add variety to these still great forests are wild thorn (Cratægus), Madrona (Arbutus Menziesii), Manzanita (Arctostaphylos bellularia), the mountain mahogany (cercocarpus), besides a species of red-bud and one of dogwood, and several species of the attractive ceanothus. There are no persimmons, catalpas, hickories, elms, beeches or magnolias in the Pacific coast forests. Maples, sycamores, laurels, alders, and poplars are found in the lowlands. The list might be further extended, but this will suffice to illustrate the nature of the forest. Its impressiveness comes solely from the size and beauty of the trees of a few typical species, which, if ever destroyed, would leave only a sorry remainder.

Next to the waste of Sierra forests in point of wantonness has been the partial destruction of the value tan-bark oak of the Coast range. This tree, by far the handsomest and most durable of the Pacific coast oaks, has been destroyed on thousands of acres of government lands, merely for the bark, which is stripped off, and the lifeless trunk left standing, to become dry as tinder, and add infinitely to the dangers of fire. The writer has known settlers in San Luis Obispo, Monterey, Santa Cruz, Sonoma, and Mendocino counties who "took up" government land, stripped the tan-oak, and abandoned their claims; and others who simply cut the tan-bark on government lands without the formality of an entry, filled with mathematical exactness." M. Dingler, engineer-in-chief of bridges and roads in France, made a thorough examination of the isthmus about one year ago, and drew up new estimates, to which Mr. Huerne had referred. M. de Lesseps stated at the July meeting that these estimates had been examined by a commission, and had been approved, together with the plan of work proposed. It was found, as the work on the isthmus progressed, that there existed a less amount of hard rock and a greater portion than was supposed of soft material, which could be removed easily.

M. de Lesseps then said that in such undertakings the principal work was the beginning. The first earth to be removed is much the more difficult and costly. In the case of the Suez canal, of 75 000 000 cubic meters [illegible] 50 000 [illegible] He did not think the work [illegible] so difficult as that performed on the Suez canal, for it was a problem of simple digging, and the experience gained in Egypt would be made available in Panama. According to the latest estimates, the excavation above the water line will consume three years, and that below the water line, two years. "Whence it results that even if we should begin the dry excavation January 1, 1885, and the dredging January 1, 1889, the canal would be completed on January 1, 1888, exactly. As an offset to the unforeseen we have as a margin all that work above water which will have been done before January 1815 and all that done by dredges before January, 1888."

M. Dingler also spoke at the meeting, and not only said that the work would be completed in 1888, but remarked that, "according to his estimates, the work could be completed in 1887. We have to overcome the unknown, the whole of 1888."

No one connected with the work has yet stated that the estimates of work to be done have been increased to 200,000,000 cubic meters.

FLORENCE NIGHTINGALE.

Her Views on the Cholera—It Cannot be Stopped by Quarantine nor Cordons.

New York Herald.

In reply to an inquiry, Miss Florence Nightingale, the Crimean heroine, kindly sends to the New York Herald:

SIR: I beg to reply to your note asking for "practical advice" in view of the rapid spread of cholera,"

That our whole experience in India, where cholera is never wholly absent, tends to prove—nay, actually does prove—that cholera is not communicable from person to person.

That the disease cannot be ascribed to "somebody else;" that is, that the sick do not manufacture a "special poison" which causes the disease.

That cholera is a local disease—an epidemic affecting localities, and there depending upon pollution of earth, air, and water and buildings.

That the isolation of the sick cannot stop the disease nor

QUARANTINE, NOR CORDONS,

Nor the like. These, indeed, may tend fatally to aggravate the disease, directly and indirectly, by turning away our attention from the only measures which can stop it.

That the only preventive is to put the earth, air and water and buildings into a healthy state by scavenging, limewashing and every kind of scavenger work, and, if cholera does come, to move the people from the places where the disease has broken out and then to cleanse.

Persons about cholera patients do not "catch" the disease from the sick any more than cases of poisoning "infect" others. If a number of persons have been poisoned, say by arsenic put by mistake into food, it is because they have each swallowed the arsenic. It is not because they have taken "it," the "mysterious influence," of one another.

In looking sadly at Egypt—Egypt, where cholera did not begin anywhere along the route from India to Europe, but at Damietta, where no ship and

and where the dreadful insanitary condition of the place fully accounts for and outbreak of cholera—in sorrowfully looking at Egypt and at Europe now, one might almost say that it is this doctrine of a special poison emanating from the sick, and which it is thought can be carried in a package, that has (mentally) "poisoned" us. People will soon believe that you can take cholera by taking a railway ticket. They speak as if the only reason against enforcing quarantine were not that it is an impossibility and an absurdity to stop disease in this way, but that it is impossible to enforce quarantine. "If only we could," they say, "all would be well."

Vigorously enforce sanitary measures, but with judgment—e. g., scavenge, scavenge, scavenge; wash, cleanse and limewash; remove all putrid human refuse from privies and cesspits and cesspools and dustbins; look to stables and cowsheds and pigsties; look to common lodging houses and crowded places,

DIRTY HOUSES AND YARDS,

"Set your house in order" in all ways sanitary and hygienic, according to the conditions of the place, and "all will be well."

I beg to send you the best thing that has been written upon the subject—where also what can be said about quarantine is fully stated in the best manner—the lecture by Dr. Cunningham, sanitary commissioner with the government of India, on the "Sanitary Lessons of Indian Epidemics," at the beginning of the Medical Times, which I enclose.

The real danger to be feared is in blaming somebody else and not our own selves for such an epidemic visitation. As a matter of fact, if the disease attacks our neighbors we ourselves are already liable to it. To trust for protection to stopping intercourse would be just as rational as to try to sweep back an incoming flood instead of getting out of its way.

With the most earnest wish that America, as well as England, may "set her house in order," and so defy cholera and turn its appearance elsewhere into a blessing, pray, believe me, ever her and your faithful servant,

FLORENCE NIGHTINGALE.

WHAT SOME PAPERS SAY.

Burlington Hawkeye (Rep.): Cleveland and Hendricks need protection, and will soon commence to read the democratic platform backward.

St. Louis Globe Democrat (Rep.): The independent republican committee's defense of Cleveland is so thin that it would do for a political transparency.

Cleveland Leader (Rep.): There is at least one man in the United States who is finding the summer [illegible] Grover Cleveland is finding things [illegible] hot enough for him, and the temperature around him is likely to rise rather than fall.

New York Mail and Express (Gen.): [illegible] in 1872, when the Russian contingent of the liberal republican democratic army figured so expensively and ineffectually in the campaign.

Utica Herald (rep.): "Mr. Blaine is the candidate of the worst elements of the republican party," say the independents. The worst elements, therefore, embrace E. R. Hoar, W. M. Evarts, John G. Whittier, J. R. Hawley, John Sherman, George F. Edmunds, George F. Hoar, etc. These and such as these are the "riff raff" with whom the reformers are too good to associate.

Chicago Inter Ocean (rep.): The democratic party cannot to-day inscribe a single motto or achievement on its banners from the dark days of 1860 to the present which will inspire its followers with enthusiasm. What can it say to the young men just coming into active life and duty? The less the better. If it could blot out the past of history the present and the future would give larger promise.

Louisville Courier-Journal (Dem.): If Cleveland is defeated by Kelly and Butler in New York it will be an evil day for that state. The national convention has openly repudiated these men, has refused to bow to their dictation, and the position of the party should be sustained by the people with a majority such as that with which Cleveland was elected governor.

New York World (Dem.): It is an absurdity to allow the distribution of local offices in the city to interfere with the prospect of electing a democratic president of the United States. Indeed, it is a crime, for it may entail upon the country another long term of corrupt and rascally republican rule. Better that Tammany should have every office in the municipal government than that the country should be subjected to such an affliction and peril.

Artificial Flowers.

Philadelphia Press.

A well known dealer in artificial flowers speaks of the finer varieties of artificial made in his line being manufactured in Paris, though a few are now made in New York. "Those plants you see in the Japanese flower pots," said Mr. Burgdahl, "are made by men, at least the leaves of this begonia are. They are cut out in muslin and then dipped in wax, being then painted by hand. This part of the work is generally performed by women. They are not at all brittle. See, I crush them up in my hand and they immediately are their shape when I let go. They don't require to be kept under a glass cover. If proper care is taken of them the flowers are good to last five years and the leaves a lifetime. All these foliage and flowering plants, begonias, coleus, chrysanthemums, roses, geraniums and so on are copied from models of the plant itself. Of the leaves and stems dies are made, which are very expensive, costing anywhere from $10 to $150 a set. The colors are laid on with a soft camel's hair brush. The hanging baskets cost from $5 to $100, and three long ornamental jardinieres are even more expensive, as high as $200 having been paid for them. Bouquets of artificial flowers are sometimes carried by ladies at balls, since natural flowers are so dreadfully expensive. The other day we made a wreath of artificial flowers to go around a lady's dress she intends to visit Saratoga. It was of pinks and drooping grasses, and cost $50.

A Dog Story.

The Bangor (Me.) Commercial varies its summer programme of fish stories by a dog yarn. The extraordinary animal is owned by Charles L. Chase of Waterboro, who goes extensively on chickens and ducks, and the dog takes care of them. The dough for the fowls is mixed every morning and placed in a tray. Regularly six times every day the dog paws out some of the grub into a smaller dish, carries it outdoors in his mouth, and spreads it around over a board with his fore paws. Then with a peculiar bark, which the hens know just as well as the usual "Biddy, Biddy," he calls the hens and chickens around. If a hen comes who has no business there he drives her off. Twice every day he drives the young ducks about a quarter of a mile to a small pond for a swim. When he thinks they have been in the water long enough he drives them back home. He never lost a duck. Next!

Checkmated.

Merchant Traveler.

Mrs. Jobelowizzle was about ready to leave home for the summer, and she spent lots of money and worried the life half out of Jobelowizzle.

"My dear," she said to him on the last morning, "is everything ready?"

"I hope so," was the dejected reply.

"When will the carriage be here?"

"In plenty of time to take you to the train."

"Is the baggage all down?"

"Yes."

"Is that little trunk checked and my Saratoga and my big leather trunk, and my valise?"

"Yes."

"Are you sure everything is checked?"

"All but two things, my dear."

"That's the way," she exclaimed; "you always miss something. I never saw such creatures as men. What two haven't you checked?"

"Your extravagance and your jaw, my dear. The man in the office said there wasn't a railroad in the country that would assume that responsibility."

Mrs. B.: "In what way?"

Mrs. A.: "The servants broke them, of course."

Mrs. B.: "Well, I have never kept house. We have boarded since our marriage, but I have often thought that if I did I would at the very start make it a rule to charge the servants for everything broken."

"Mrs. A.: "It would do no good. I tried that once."

Mrs. B.: "How did it work?"

Mrs. A.: "When the girl left I owed her $10 and she owed me $750."

"But oh, papa, George and I do love each other so devotedly." "I don't care, I say you shall not marry him. How on earth can he support the daughter of a wealthy merchant when his salary is only $500 a year?" "But, papa, you forget he is your confidential clerk, your trusted employe!" "What of that?" "Why, he probably owes more of the store than you do already."—Chicago Herald.

A SEASIDE PRACTICAL JOKE.

A good joke is in the way of a clambake has just come to light. Week before last a number of young gentlemen of Portland were agreeably surprised at receiving invitations to a clambake to be given at Clatsop beach on Tuesday, August 12, 1884, by two young ladies well known in this city. The invitations were unique, consisting of genuine clam shells, on the inside of which were written the invitations, accompanied by a small painting or an appropriate sketch, and being further adorned by artistically knotted bows of ribbon. They were at once shown to all the friends of the young gentlemen, who greatly admired them; and, indeed, they were worthy of it. Since the invitations were so artistically gotten up, the clambake was expected to be a grand affair, and the young gentlemen, all but one of whom were unable to attend the banquet, sadly sent regrets in response to the R. S. V. P., which was written in one corner of their invitations. Every one, as the appointed day drew nigh, thought to himself how much he should like to be present, and the breast of the one who was so fortunate as to be able to step upon the deck of the Wide West on Tuesday morning, bound for the scene of the expected feast, was now filled with joy by the pleasures of anticipation, and the next moment saddened by the fear that he would not arrive in time for it. As soon as he could remove the dust of travel from his happy countenance, he hastened to the young ladies' camp to learn of the much thought of banquet, but his heart began to sink as he remembered that nothing had been said at the hotel about the great clambake. When he reached the camp, what was his dismay at finding it deserted! Not a sign of clambake or young ladies could be found. Slowly and sadly he turned back toward the hotel, overcome with disappointment. He had gone but a little way when he met those whom he had been seeking, laden with huckleberries. Breathlessly he inquired about the clambake, and they, greatly discomfited at seeing him before them, confessed that there wasn't to be any; that they had just sent the invitation for a joke, not expecting that anybody would come, and that they had forgotten all about it, and had gone off huckleberrying. Their discomfiture seemed so real that the poor young man felt compelled to say, as cheerfully as possible, that he never thought they were really going to have any, and, after making his adieus, walked slowly back to the hotel, wondering just whom the joke fell upon. It is said that the young ladies were very anxious that the rest of the invited guests should not hear the story, and, of course the disappointed young man would not tell, but everybody knows that reporters are bound to forget everything in their devotion to the cause of newsgathering, and that is how this item comes to be here.

MILITARY NOTES.

Vancouver Independent.

Lt. S. E. Sturt, 1st art., reported at department headquarters on the 15th inst.

A detachment of 50 recruits for the 14th infantry will soon arrive in this department.

Lt. S. Rollman, jr., 1st art., returned to Vancouver from leave of absence on the 16th inst.

Captain C. B. Western, 14th infantry, joined his station, Vancouver barracks, on the 16th inst.

Post Chaplain Orville J. Nave, U. S. A., reported at department headquarters on the 15th inst.

Asst. Surgeon B. F. Wilson has changed station from Fort Walla Walla to Vancouver barracks.

Major W. F. Drum, 14th infantry, has gone to Fort Klamath to make the annual inspection of that post.

Captain Stephen N. Whipple, 1st cavalry, has been found incapacitated by a retiring board and relieved from duty, pending his retirement.

Companies D and H of the 21st infantry have taken station at Fort Bridger, Wyoming, and Co. A has gone to Fort McKinney, Wyoming.

The chief quartermaster of this department has advertised for proposals to convert a building at the barracks into a double set of officers' quarters.

Forty miles, more or less, of barbed wire has been received at Vancouver Barracks, for fencing in the government reserve back of the garrison grounds.

Lieut. Guy Carleton, 2d cavalry, has been detailed as judge advocate of the general court martial in session at Fort Cœur d'Alene, vice Lieut. Abner Pickering, 21 infantry, resigned.

Capt. Frank D. Baldwin's wife and daughter started for Detroit on the 15th inst. Mrs. Baldwin will remain some months, and her daughter will be placed in school at Detroit.

Lieut. A. L. O'Brien, 2d cavalry, with a detachment of twelve men, has taken possession of Fort Lapwai, and Capt. Dempsey's company of the 21 infantry, which left Fort Lapwai has completed its march to its new station at Fort Boise.

Under recent war department orders, Lieut. Geo. W. Goethals, corps of engineers, chief engineer officer of the department, will be relieved from duty in the department of the Columbia, and will proceed to and take station at Cincinnati, Ohio.

Major Joseph J. Woodward, of the medical corps, surgeon in attendance during President Garfield's last illness, died August 18th at New York. Major Woodward entered the army in 1861 and ranked 2 in the list of majors. His death promotes Captain Egan C. Kemper to a majority.

The Mechanics' Fair.

E. W. Allen, superintendent of the Portland Mechanics' Fair association, has returned from San Francisco where he visited the Mechanics' fair of that city. In conversation with a reporter yesterday Mr. Allen said that many new and interesting exhibits now in the San Francisco fair have been promised for the exhibition here. Especially has he endeavored to secure interesting inventions and machinery, and among those which are expected to be exhibited here may be mentioned, a patent pea sheller, saw and wire manufacturers. A very interesting exhibit which it is hoped will be secured is the Golden Gate chicken incubator, in which the artificial hatching of chickens is so rapidly carried on that it proves a very attractive exhibit in the fair in San Francisco. Mr. Allen also hoped to secure as an exhibit a machine for pressing brick dry, which is a new idea in the line of brick making. A small working model of the Lamson cash railway system is on exhibition at the San Francisco fair, and efforts are being made to secure the same for the fair here. This invention is designed to do away with cash boys and is already used in the large stores in the east. The money and check are together put into a hollow globe and placed in a groove on an inclined plane which runs directly to the cashier's desk. After the change is made the ball is placed in another groove and runs directly back to its sender. This plan is now in successful use in one of the large stores of San Francisco. Another very interesting machine which will probably be shown is called the Midbrae Dairy exhibit. It is a machine for separating cream from new milk. Many other interesting articles are hoped for but the above are sufficient to warrant the statement that this will be the most interesting fair ever held here. Mr. Allen states that although the exhibition building in San Francisco is much larger than ours, the agricultural exhibits do not compare with ours of last year. The arrangement of their flowers is not at all artistic and our ladies' exhibits are far ahead of those shown in San Francisco. Their art gallery is larger than ours but does not show as many fine pictures as were exhibited here last year.

Stealing a Recorder.

The Seattle Post-Intelligencer brings out this story: It will be remembered that at the last term of the district court a large number of indictments were found against various persons for gambling and like offenses. As the term was drawing to a close, most of these persons were arrested and released on bonds for their appearance at the next term of the court. The bonds were given and, together with the indictments, placed on file in the office of the clerk of the district court in this city. A week or so ago one of the gamblers in the list, while on a spree in Victoria, boasted that a purse of $500 had been raised, and that some person had been hired to steal the indictments and bonds and had been successful in his mission. This came to the ears of Chief Woolery, who went to the clerk's office and informed Mr. Ludlow of what he had learned. Mr. Ludlow went at once to the safe where he had placed the papers, and, to his utter surprise and chagrin, found that the nine indictments and the accompanying bonds had been stolen from his office. The officers set at once diligently at work to ferret out the case, but up to this time have found no clue as to the perpetrator of the dar[ing] and risky deed. The bonds and indictments [illegible] justice have been thwarted by some [illegible] the chance of spending the remainder of his days in the penitentiary for the paltry bribe of $500.

Conference of the Prohibition Party.

There was held yesterday at the Quimby house in this city a conference of the leading lights of the prohibition party of Oregon to consider matters relating to the coming presidential campaign in this state. G. W. Dimick, of Hubbard, J. H. Pointon, of Eugene, and other prominent temperance men identified with the movement were present. The object of the meeting, which was quite informal, was to devise plans for the raising of funds to distribute documents and campaign literature throughout the state and do as much as possible to rally men to the support of the St. John presidential ticket. It does not appear to be generally known that there has already been an electoral ticket chosen for Oregon. It was selected at a convention of the prohibition party of Oregon held in Corvallis in June last. The electoral ticket as then chosen is as follows: J. G. Meddock of Umatilla, G. W. Dimick of Marion, and W. F. Owens of Douglas. Mr. Houston, who was seen to-day, thinks the party will poll 500 votes in this state, even if no effort is made. A little well directed effort, he says, will double or treble that estimate.

TRADE AND COMMERCE.

FRIDAY, Aug. 22.

OVERLAND RECEIPTS include 125 cs 100 kgs syrup, 25 tcs hams, 15 cs bacon, 100 cs lard, 25 cs canned goods, 60 cs canned fish, 50 cs lye, 200 bf bxs candles, 6 bbls sugar, 41 bxs nails, 2 cs cigars, 134 pkgs tobacco.

PRODUCE RECEIPTS—Past 24 hours: 1288 ctls wheat, 470 bbls flour, 191 ctls oats, 64 ctls bran, 2 sks potatoes, 97,480 lbs wool, 638 lbs hides, 61 cs eggs, 281 bxs fruit, 28 pkgs butter, 104 bls hay. Also 1010 ct s wheat, 270 bbls flour from the eastern section.

FREIGHTS.—The W. H. Starbuck gets $20 0 0 to New York. The iron bark Glenogle comes from Valparaiso for late fall loading. In the market nothing is doing and rates are nominally unchanged.

WHEAT.—Beerbohm cables a heavy market but keeps his quotations rather above those received by shippers. As best figure for valley cargoes yesterday 37s was cabled with every indication of a lower figure soon. This would allow not over $1 12½ to be paid here for valley wheat. Yesterday we quoted nominally at $1 20@1 25, anything like an exact quotation being impossible. On the receipt of late cables shippers have materially lowered their views, some naming $1 15@1 15 to-day while more is said to be possible from millers. Should shippers not be able to pay beyond what they now name millers will certainly hold off for pretty much the same figure. Selling is uphill work at the best, for buyers are apparently few and are not in a position to need wheat. One of the largest of last year's shipping firms is said to be entirely out of the market at present while there are but a few that will touch wheat. Until buying is more generally indulged in quotations must be largely nominal and possibly misleading to some extent. All advices are off to-day, no single market reported showing any tone.

FLOUR.—Sales of standards are still made at $4 75, old wheat. One mill for several days has quoted $4 50. The Salem flouring mills company are working new wheat, but most mills are yet grinding old stock and extreme prices are known to have been paid for old wheat up the valley.

OATS.—Market fully supplied .... 2 to 30 cents.

FRUIT.—Apples and pears more than plentiful, necessitating close work in placing consignments. Choice apples sold at 50c to-day while pears drag at 40@75c. The Bartlett and the Flemish Beauty are thus by marketed. Peaches show some weakness.

DRIED FRUIT.—Market shows little interest. At San Francisco large stocks are arriving and prices are dropping.

HOPS.—Samples of new coming in, but there are no buyers as yet.

WOOL.—The placing of the Starbuck on berth for New York furnishes a new outlet for stocks. On present basis the freight is [illegible] per pound, and insurance will not exceed 2½ per cent. As the eastern markets are not expected to show much improvement before spring the Starbuck has obtained free engagements. The market remains dull with nothing doing in a local way.

EGGS.—The advance to 25c brings forward larger arrivals, and stocks show a firm tone.

She Could Turn a Somersault.

Boston Journal.

Yesterday afternoon a horse-car was slowly bumping along toward the South End, and among the passengers were two refined-looking young men, who were holding an animated conversation in one corner. Their words were inaudible to the rest of the passengers, owing to the noise of the car wheels and the groaning and creaking of the vehicle. All of a sudden, however, the car stopped, and thrilling across the momentary silence came this remark from the prettier of the pair:

"You just ought to see me turn a somersault!"

The effect was extraordinary. Two light-minded young men at the other end of the car laughed aloud, a clerical looking person opposite the pair half rose, as if meditating flight, and then sat down again, an aged and severe aspected dame glared at the speaker through spectacles which focused her gaze until it bored its way like a gimblet, and the faces of the two young women turned to a charming scarlet hue.

And yet the speaker was not a circus rider, a trapeze performer, or anything else odd, unfeminine or indelicate. She belonged to one of our best families, and having just returned from [illegible] gymnasium [illegible] was describing to her friend her training on the parallel bars.

Expresses his Gratitude. Alex. I. A. Larson, of Ricksburg, Iowa, in expressing his gratitude to the proprietors of Acker's [illegible] writes: "I firmly believe my wife would have died [illegible] consumption. [illegible]"

AYER'S Hair Vigor cures baldness. Hair Vigor restores youthful freshness and color to faded and gray hair. It attains these results by the stimulation of the hair roots and color glands. It rejuvenates the HAIR and cleanses it. It restores to the HAIR that, either by reason of age or diseases of the scalp, has become dry, harsh and brittle, a pliancy and glossy silken softness of extreme beauty. There is no dye in Ayer's Hair VIGOR and the good it does is by the VIGOR it imparts to the follicles, and the cleanliness and healthfulness of the condition in which it maintains the scalp.

AYER'S Hair Vigor renews the hair. Hair Vigor is the best cure known for Brashy Hair, Scald Head, Itching Humors, Tetter Sores, Torpid Follicles, and all other diseases of the scalp that cause the falling of the HAIR and its fading. Nothing cleanses HAIR of the nuisance of dandruff so perfectly, and so effectually prevents its return, as AYER'S HAIR VIGOR. In addition to the curative and restorative virtues peculiar to Ayer's Hair VIGOR it is a toilet luxury. The Hair VIGOR is by far the cleanliest hair-dressing made. It causes the hair to grow thick and long, and keeps it always soft and glossy.

Ayer's Hair Vigor

Contains no deleterious ingredients. Its use prevents all scalp disease, secures against the hair growing thin or gray, and surely cures all baldness that is not organic.
